IT'S WAR TO DEATH

A Bloody Revolution in Guatemala.

Howling Mobs Demanding Barrilla's Life.

Other Southern Countries Will be Drawn In.

Pundering of the Public Treasury Must Cease.

Hundreds of Dead and Wounded Natives Left on the Streets Under the Scorching Rays of a Tropical Sun.

City of Mexico, Sept. 29.—A revolution has been precipitated in the republic of Guatemala.

A gentleman who left the city of Guatemala on the morning of the 16th instant, and who reached this city on horseback for the Mexican port of Acapulco yesterday, brings information that an outbreak occurred in Guatemala City on the 15th instant and was still in progress when he left.

It appears that the people were celebrating the anniversary of their national holiday and President Barrilas had personally apointed the orators of the day.

To this the masses took exception, and when the orators took the rostrum it was a signal for a storm of stones, which set them to flight, they being chased across the big plaza by a howling mob shouting: "Down with the government." "Down with despotism and tyranny." "Die Barrillas."

An exciting scene followed and every known liberal or Barrillas partisan was driven from the plaza, being stoned at every step.

The news of the riot spread rapidly, and President Barrillas threw a battery of infantry into the square for the purpose of dispersing the mob.

They, with fixed bayonets, attempted to carry the plaza by assault, but were met with a shower of stones and bullets from revolvers.

This unexpected action of the mob put them to ignominious flight, leaving hundreds dead and wounded in the plaza. The uproar was something to be long remembered. Members of the mob shouted: "Let's storm the national palace, kill Barrillas and restore a republican form of government. Guatemala should not be ruled by a dictator. Plundering of the national treasury must cease."

Barrillas then ordered artillery into the plaza and infantry and two cannons to guard his residence. When the guns were turned on the mob there was a general dispersing, though they discharged their revolvers at the artillery men.

They left the plaza, but fought in the side streets; in fact they practically during the night of the 15th held full control of the city.

The reports of revolvers and rifles were to be heard all night and at the hour the gentleman giving this information left for San Jose de Guatemala to embark for Acapulco, fighting was still in progress.

In his conception this will cause a general revolt throughout the republic of Guatemala and engender war in all of the other Central American states.

A strict censorship is maintained over all press dispatches, and the mails are also trifled with to prevent the leaking out of any information.

A special to the Anglo-American from Newton, on the line between Guatemala and Mexico, received in this city at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and delivered to that telegraphic station by special courier, brings information that Barrillas is master of the situation, having put down the revolution after three days hard fighting.

The revolt was precipitated by Montufar, a son of one of the candidates for the presidency, who is a strong partisan of Barrillas, in attempting to make a political speech on Independence day.

A mob threw him and his friends from the platform in the main plaza, pelting them with stones until they found shelter in another neighboring house.

From that time until the night of the 18th there was street fighting, sometimes the mob being in control and at other times the army. The arrival of troops from adjoining districts eventually restored Barrillas to power and the city is now infested with soldiers. Martial law has been declared.

It was expected when the courier left the city of Guatemala that Barrillas would declare himself dictator so as to prolong his term of office.

Salvador is moving troops to the military district of Santa Ana, bordering on the southern frontier of Guatemala and it is believed for the purpose of invading the latter country if the city of Guatemala revolt spreads to interior points.

Another account says Col. Jobon, by an order of Barrillas, killed Gen. Sanchez and was immediately made, by Barrillas, commander of the artillery.

It followed that a brother of Gen Sanchez, learning of his assassination, went to the place which was surrounded by cannon, where Jobon was stationed, and shot and killed him.

The press has been reprimanded and not only the editors but the proprietors are threatened; but, nevertheless, the newspaper articles continue to be very strong against the government.

A private dispatch to a prominent merchant in this city who has business relations in the city of Guatemala, showed to your correspondent last night, from Newton, says that fully 500 men were sacrificed by the three days fighting, and that Barrillas is still shooting down participants in the revolt as if they were animals.

The dispatch also conveys the information that Barrillas has declared himself dictator.

Gen. Sanchez' brother who shot and killed Jobon, has been executed.

A reign of terror prevails, the inhabitants being afraid to leave their houses.

A revolt has taken place at Jorgullos, Angos, in which the revolutionist leader is reported to be supported by over 1,000 men.

The palace and residence of President Barrillas are guarded by both infantry and artillery. Barrillas does not stir abroad, unless guarded by a large force of cavalry.

TAKEN THE OATH.

New York, Sept. 29.—The new collector of the port, Francis Hendrick, took the oath of office to-day. His bondsmen are Edward H. Jodd, Senator Frank Hiscock, Vice President Morton and Col. Elliott Sheppard. They qualified in an aggregate sum of $300,000.

A WOMAN ON THE GALLOWS.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 29.—Henrietta Murell, colored, was hanged yesterday at Smithville, Charlotte county, this state, for the murder, by drowning, of her 8-year-old child. She confessed the crime, her defense being that she could not obtain work and support herself and offspring.

SIXTEEN MILLION.

The Navy Department Wants Money for Ships.

Washington, Sept. 29.—About $16,000,000 is the sum the navy department will ask for in its annual estimate for continuing work on the new navy. This does not include anything for new vessels. It is simply the amount required for meeting payments under existing contract which will be due during the fiscal year ending 1893.

Of this amount $9,000,000 is required for the construction of the vessels proper and $7,000,000 for machinery, armament and equipments. The secretary, it is understood, will especially advocate this year the construction of a number of fast torpedo boats and small, light draught cruisers.

Most naval officers would rather see the limited amount that is likely to be allowed this year for additional vessels expended in several smaller crafts that can be built quickly than to have all the amount centraled in one large battle ship that requires years to build. It is considered desirable to continue the addition of large ships, but if there is to be only one choice the navy department's decision will be in favor of small ships, such as are now most urgently needed for service in China and on the Pacific station—ships of the protected cruiser type, capable of moderately high speed, that can go from one port of the Pacific to another on short notice to look after American interests, and at the same time be serviceable in preying on an enemy's commerce in the event of war.

THE RED MAN'S RIGHTS.

An Indian School Compelled to Give Up a Pupil.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The commissioner of Indian affairs has received a copy of a recent opinion by Judge Green of the district court of the territory of Oklahoma, directing the restoration to his parents of an Indian boy placed in the government Indian school at Chilocco by the Indian office officials.

The father of the boy began habeas corpus proceedings to secure possession of his son who, under an act passed at the last session of congress, had been compelled to attend school.

Judge Green held that as the Indian office had not issued as required by the act, rules and regulations to compel attendance of Indian children at schools provided for them, the retention of the boy contrary to the will of his parents was illegal.

The effect of this decision is regarded by the commissioner of Indian affairs as likely to prove prejudicial to the schools, and it is the intention to carry the case to a higher court. The judge in his opinion took the ground that the right of a parent to the custody of his children belonged to the Indian as well as to a white man.

A Miner's Awful Death-Bed Confession.

Three Men Were Murdered for Their Money and Their Bodies Disposed of.

Shamokin, Pa., Sept. 29.—John Girock was stricken with typhoid fever a month ago and died last night. Just before his death he made a confession, in which he said that seven years ago, while working at Sunbury, he and a man named Charles Ward murdered Oscar Olack, who worked on a railroad with them, and robbed him of his savings. The body was buried under an old tool house.

When asked next day about Oscar's absence he said he had left for his home in Poland. Richard, a brother of Oscar, suspected foul play and instituted such a searching investigation that, fearful of being discovered, the assassians lured him into the country and killed him. The body was buried in a swamp and the murderers reported the next day that he had gone to join his brother in Poland.

Soon after this two pair came to Shamokin and worked in the mines. A peddler stopped at their home one night for shelter and in an unguarded moment mentioned that he had $150. He was shot dead and robbed and the body thrown down an air hole.

A Nihilist Hunting for News in Russia.

His Object is to Bring Back to America a Correct Report of the Political Situation.

Boston, Sept. 29.—The Boston branch of the Russian Nihilist society met last evening and final instructions were given to the member chosen to be the secret bearer of dispatches to the nihilist headquarters in St. Petersburg.

The dispatch bearer is also charged to bring back complete details of the political situation in Russia, as it is believed the time is nearly ripe for events of great moment in the history of the empire.

The agent who leaves on his perilous journey this week was formerly an exile in Siberia and escaped four years ago to this country.

MONEY BY THE KEG.

The Economists Have no Fear of a Financial Panic.

Beaver Falls, Pa., Sept. 29.—Yesterday the Economites shipped to the Economic Saving Bank in this city a mail keg full of old United States silver coins as bright and new as when they left the mint. The coins were principally half dollars, dated 1853, showing that they had been hoarded away in Economy for nearly seventy years.

A small run on the bank caused the Economites to send out the money. It is believed they have several hundred thousand dollars in gold and silver stowed away in their strong boxes in some secret hiding place at Economy guarded by some of the faithful. Nearly every year they send a keg of the ancient money to the bank here.

IT WAS A SUCCESS.

The Plan to Carry the Union Pacific Debt Compleated.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—The Union Pacific extension is a success. Over $2,000,000 in subscriptions were received by Drexel, Morgan & Co. yesterday to the Union Pacific notes offered by them. They made the total subscriptions $6,200,000, or $700,000 more than was required.

The subscription books were closed and the creditors' committee held a meeting. The plan to relieve the Union Pacific of its floating debt is now a complete success. Over $18,000,000 in paper of the company has been provided for in cash and extended for three years and the company is placed in an easy financial condition.

He is Writing Mysterious Letters to Besant.

The Mahatma's All Powerful Influence.

He Needs No Long Distance Telephone to Talk With People Thousands of Miles Away.

London, Sept. 29.—Mrs. Annie Besant has created quite a ripple in the English press by her statement at a meeting of the Secularists on the occasion of her valedictory remarks to that body, with which she has been associated as an earnest worker for so many years.

She has been interviewed, columns have been given to her in the papers, and numberless letters have been addressed to the editors commenting on the position she has taken.

What has especially stirred London was her extraordinary statement about the Mahatmas. The mystic communications which these Himalayan worthies were said by Mme. Blavatsky to have sent to her, were believed by a large portion of the community to have been the work of the Theosophistic priestess herself.

To clear the fame of the departed "H. P." as Mme. Blavatsky is called by the votaries of the Theosophical lodge, Mrs. Besant, after appealing to the sense of her integrity on the part of her hearers, told the Secularists that she had received letters since Mme. Blavatsky's death from the same Mahatma who used to write to that lady.

This clears Mme. Blavatsky from the charge of writing these letters, but the skeptical may still say that somebody else wrote them who was not a Mahatma at all and with whom the knowing Blavatsky was in collusion.

Your correspondent went out to St. John's Wood to see Mrs. Besant and obtain if possible some information about the Mahatma who had taken to writing her letters. Mrs. Besant lives in the same house, 19 Avenue road, where Mme. Blavatsky did the very prosaic thing of dying.

Mrs. Besant entered the room a few moments after my card had been taken up to her and seating herself awaited my question. She was dressed in some simple black material and wore nothing in the way of jewelry or trimmings to relieve the severe simplicity of her attire.

Her face is strong and pleasing and certainly betrays intelligence and force. The thick, wavy hair is brushed straight back from the high forehead, and is almost snowy white.

"Mrs. Besant," I asked, "will you kindly tell me what is the convincing proof to you that these letters you have received are not only from a Mahatma, but from the same one who used to communicate with Mme. Blavatsky?"

"The proof is that I know the person and his handwriting," replied Mrs. Besant quietly but with conviction. "These letters are written by the same hands as those which Mme. Blavatsky received. Consequently, as dead people do not write letters, this should relieve her of the imputation of fraud in this respect. That was my object in making the statement."

"Where does this Mahatma live?"

"In Thibet. I met him in London some years ago," Mrs. Besant replied.

"Would you allow me to see one of these letters?" your correspondent inquired.

"No," was the prompt reply. "There is no reason why I should. The letters are private communications to me and they would not convince one of their authenticity by being seen. This interest of the public in the phenomena of occultism is only curiosity."

"That is not the part of theosophy which should attract and convince one. It is the ethics and philosophy of the system which ought to appeal to the mind. I have very little desire to bring the phenomena of occultism before the public.

"In course of time the race will be developed to a point where the exercise of those faculties which have control over the subtler forms of matter and physical agencies which produce these seeming wonders will be common to the majority of mankind. A life of sacrifice is one of the conditions for the development of these powers."

"What does the Mahatma write to you about?"

"Matters which concern the guidance and direction of the Theosophical society and propagation of the light which it throws upon the meaning and conduct of life."

"Could a woman be a Mahatma?" was your correspondent's next question.

"Yes, of course," returned Mrs. Besant. "There is more natural disposition and ability in some individuals for arriving at these higher powers. Most persons are not willing to go through the life of self-denial and devotion to the good of others which is part and a great part of the training. But all they do is done by natural forces. There is nothing miraculous in their deeds."

It may be recalled here to the reader that the Mahatmas are men deeply versed in the highest wisdom and possessed of powers which far transcend those of every-day mortals. Those with whom the Theosophical society is in most intimate relation dwell in Thibet and affect the Himalayas. The generality of them must travel incognito because they can not be recognized at sight. The epistolary Mahatma who used to write to Mme. Blavatsky and who now "precipitates" his high-latitude wisdom upon Mrs. Besant is named Koot Houmi.

"The method of the Mahatmas is to "precipitate" the words upon paper at the distance, it may be, of thousands of miles. Such a trifle as space doesn't enter into a Mahatma's consideration at all. The letters are written on paper of a peculiar texture, with no water-mark, and the writing fluid is apparently not ink.

"If a Mahatma can 'precipitate' letters onto a sheet of paper through his action upon the subtile matter and forces of nature, why can he not act on the air so that the person whom he wishes to address can hear him?" your correspondent asked.

"He can," said Mrs. Besant, quietly.

"Why can he not project his ideas upon the intellectual conceptuality of the person who would thus receive the Mahatma's thought so directly?"

"He can," Mrs. Besant replied again, with the same tranquility. "He avails himself of the means most convenient at the time."

This was rather startling, as the means which the Mahatma usually finds "most convenient" is the "precipitation" of his thoughts on paper, and the communication frequently arrives like a vulgar mail letter. Whereas if the Himalayan sage has only to shut his eyes, concentrate his thoughts on Mrs. Besant and charge her brain with his imparted information by simple volitionizing the thinner media of nature for transmitting them thus, one would certainly think nothing could be more convenient. The only difficulty which suggested itself was one which prompted your correspondent's next question.

"Does the exercise of this thought transference weaken the Mahatma?"

"You might as well ask me if walking to Regent's park weakens me," was Mrs. Besant's reply, and she smiled slightly. "The exercise of any energy taxes one more or less, does it not?"

"Can these powers be imparted to another? Can a Mahatma teach one to do these things?"

"Yes. But as I told you, the condition to an education in such powers as these is a life of sacrifice and denial such as few persons are willing to submit themselves to. Moreover, the communication of these powers must be made judiciously. Otherwise it would be putting the most dangerous instruments into the hands of people who would do evil with them. You know what hypnotism does; how one agent by his hypnotizing power constrains another to do what he wills. The possibilities for evil-doing in such a power are obvious. Now, hypnotism is one of the lowest and least of the exercises of occultism," said Mrs. Besant, with a slight disdain.

"Are you a pupil of the Mahatma? And can you exercise any of these powers?"

"Yes. I have led a life of self-sacrifice for years. I do not claim any merit in it. It makes me happier, and I have been strengthened to it by virtue of different incarnations. It all tends to the ultimate good of the individual also, because the general condition of things is constantly ameliorating by virtue of this education to higher things, and in successive re-incarnations one enjoys this higher and nobler character which humanity is slowly taking on."

"The Mahatma is then the highest concrete expression of theosophy, is it not?" I asked.

"He is," Mrs. Besant returned.

"And you find in theosophy a solution to life and its mysteries better than that which you found in Christianity?" your correspondent asked.

"I do. I was for years a fervent Christian, but I do not think that my critical faculty received any development from its practice and belief. I do not believe in anything spiritual in the sense of something apart from and independent of matter. There are very high and subtle forms of matter which we can call spirit.

"And now I must excuse myself, as I have much to do," said Mrs. Besant, gracefully rising and extending her hand.

FACTS FROM FINDLAY.

People's Party Ticket in Hancock County.

Strong Resolutions Adopted—A New Sunday Paper—General Mention.

Findlay, Sept. 29.—(Special.)—The Farmers' alliance or people's party of Hancock county held their convention in this city on Saturday and nominated the following county ticket:

Representative—Moses McAnnelly, Biglick township.

County Commissioner—H. T. Thaley, Pleasant township.

Infirmary Director—Charles Beamer, Washington township.

The nominations were all made by acclamation. The following resolutions were adopted:

The committee on resolutions reported the following, which was adopted by a rising vote:

The delegates of the people's party, of Hancock county, from the different townships and wards, in convention assembled, to take counsel and advise proper action regarding our industrial system, believe

1. That under our present system of finance, land and transportation, the farmers and laborers are robbed of the wealth they produce, thus closing the door of advancement against them.

2. That it is a great privilege which the toiling masses possess of throwing all past prejudice aside and with the free ballot succeed in suppressing wrong and establishing justice. Upon these conditions we recommend the following platform of principles:

That we indorse the platform of the people's party adopted at Springfield, August 6, 1891, and that we pledge our support to said party.

2. That we demand the taxation of all mortgages with a corresponding exemption to the mortgage and that all promissory notes, due bills, stocks, bonds and chattel mortgages be uncollectable without the assessor's seal showing that the same has been listed for taxation.

3. That we demand the reduction of the salary of public official commensurate to that of other occupations.

4. That we demand an economical use of the public funds of the county to the end that tue taxpayers be relieved of burdensome taxation.

To the accomplishment of these ends be it resolved,

1. That the candidate for representative nominated by this convention pledge himself in writing or open convention to the said platform of principles.

2. that we use all honorable means of bringing principles before the minds of the people.

POLITICS IN YORK STATE

Hill to Keep Jones Out of the Seat.

He Don't Want His Good Work Undone.

The Present Governor Will Serve Until January First When He Will Take His Seat as Senator.

New York, Sept. 29.—It is now pretty definitely settled that Lieut.-Gov. Jones will not run as an independent candidate for governor, and the friends of J. Sloat Fassett, the republican candidate, feel relieved.

They feared, it is said, that Gen. Jones might accept a Farmers' alliance nomination. The Farmers' alliance is strong in the western tier of counties and is composed chiefly of republican farmers.

Should they have a candidate in the field Mr. Fassett would be the sufferer, and it is intimated that the shrewd Mr. Platt has had something to do with keeping the warlike Jones out of the field.

The lieutenant-governor is now said to have another grievance against Gov. Hill, whom he accuses of defrauding him of the gubernatorial nomination.

He now claims to be possessed of information to the effect that he is to be deprived of the privilege of acting even one day as governor of the empire state.

Congress will meet on the first Monday in December, and should Gov. Hill qualify and take his seat as United States senator at that time Lieut.-Gov. Jones would serve as governor for the remainder of the month. Mr. Jones' friends claim to have information that the lieutenant-governor is to be deprived of even this small honor; that Gov. Hill will continue his chief executive of the state till January 1, 1892, and will then qualify as United States senator.

The reason alleged is that, possessed of the power of the governor, even for the short space of one month, Gen. Jones could create a panic among democratic office-holders and build up a machine of his own which would be a menace to the regular democratic organization in 1892, when, if at no other time, the democracy of the state should be united to secure the choice of a democrat for president. This he could do with the aid of the republican state senate, which would be only too glad to assist him in circumventing the governor's organization in the state.

Should Lieut.-Gov. Jones be governor for 30 days he could convene the senate in special session, and by and with its "advice and consent" appoint an entirely new board of state assessors at salaries of $2,500 each; a factory inspector at a salary of $2,000; three members of the board of mediation and arbitration at salaries of $3,000 each; three civil service commissioners with salaries of $2,000 each; a commissioner of labor statistics at $3,000 yearly; a state dairy commissioner at $3,000, and two members of the board of claims with salaries of $5,000 each. Besides these he could appoint an inspector of gas meters, a superintendent of Onondaga Salt Springs, and many minor officials, all for terms varying from two to five years, with the exception of the civil service commissioners, who are removable at pleasure.

All of these officials have subordinates who are paid by warrants on the state treasury, and Gov. Jones could build himself up quite a machine in the state, especially with the labor element and the farmers. The senate has withheld its consent when Gov. Hill has attempted to fill these places, and the result is that most of the incumbents are holdovers.

Whether the lieutenant-governor has really any information that Gov. Hill does not propose to let him sit for a few days in the executive chamber at Albany, or only imagines it because he fears that his plans will miscarry through such a determination on the part of the governor, matters little when it is understood the wily scalemaker is said to have threatened that unless the governor does give up his seat in December and go to Washington he will see to it that Hill is not received at the latter place when he finally does go there. This alleged threat is understood to mean that unless Gov. Hill presents himself at the bar of the United States senate to qualify early in December a republican majority in that body will declare his seat vacant.

That this threat should have any force it will be necessary that the republicans have a majority in the next legislature, for it is unlikely that the dignified United States senate would declare Gov. Hill's seat vacant when he could be again returned the following month by the vote of a democratic legislature. A great deal depends upon developments which are looked for within the next few weeks. The political outlook, viewed from this standpoint, is, to say the least, very interesting, and Lieut.-Gov. Jones is the most unique figure in the arena at present.

SEVERE DISCIPLINE.

Col. Compton Suspended for Two Years on Half Pay.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The president to-day approved the sentence in the court martial case of Charles E. Compton, Fourth cavalry, but mitigated the sentence to a suspension from rank and command, on half pay for two years.

The sentence of the court martial was suspension from rank and command on half pay for three years and to be confined to the limits of a military post to be designated by the secretary of war.

The charge upon which Col. Compton was tried was negligence in not exercising proper control over his men. A soldier of his command was killed by a citizen of Walla Walla, Wash., and the murderer was arrested by the civil authorities and placed in jail.

The murder so excited the comrades of the soldier that they formed themselves into a mob, stormed the jail and took out the murderer and lynched him.

ROBBING THE MAILS.

England's Postal Service Going to Pieces.

London, Sept. 29.—The editor of the United Service Gazette has created a sensation by his attack upon the postoffice management. In the August issue of the Gazette the editor complained that his correspondence had been tampered with and this month he follows up his charge with a statement that he has received hundreds of letters from all parts of England declaring that the postoffice is riddled with peculation and petty theft, and that detective service has broken down.

The force of the attack is much increased by the general public conviction that the charges are true.

Farmer Sinclair of Dakota Becomes an Earl.

He Succeeds to the Title of and Estates of Caithness.

His Father Had Become an Earl and Died Before the son Heard the News—Efforts to Find Him.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept., 29.—From a small farm on the Dakota prairies to a fine old English estate and a seat in the house of lords is a long step, but John S. Sinclair, of Lakota, Nelson county, has made the stride and become earl of Caithness.

Sinclair's father was James Augustus Sinclair, a professional man who had not made a success of life. His grandfather was Lieut.-Col. John Sutherland Sinclair.

Colonel Sinclair had a pension during his life, but it ceased with his death, and his son and the family had nothing to depend upon but their own exertions.

The Sinclairs were distantly related to George Phillips Alexander, Earl of Caithness, but so slight was the tie of kinship that no one in the family expected to profit by it.

So John Sinclair decided to try farming in the United States. He bought a tract of land about four miles from Lakota, in this state, stocked it and bent every energy towards improving his little estate.

He called the place Berriedale, an old family name and the title bestowed by courtesy upon the eldest son of an earl of Caithness. Sinclair worked industriously to win a fortune in the west, cutting off to an extent all communication with his own home.

When Sinclair left England, four years ago, George Phillips Sinclair, fifteenth earl of Caithness, was 27 or 28 years old. He had health and strength, was married to a daughter of the late J. McSole, esq. He seemed likely to hold the title and estates for half a century to come and then to pass them over to a son. In 1889, however, the young earl died. He left no male heir. For nearly a year the title lay dormant, and then John S. Sinclair's father was adjudged to be the nearest of kin. He became earl of Caithness, and John S. Sinclair, the Dakota farmer, became Lord Berriedale.

Sinclair's father died quite suddenly last spring. Efforts were at once made to communicate with the son in Dakota, who by his father's death became Earl of Caithness, but without success. Letter after letter was forwarded, but as they were simply addressed to "John S. Sinclair, Berriedale Farm, near Dakota," one after another they found their way to the dead-letter office at Washington.

Five moths were spent by the department officials in discovering the right address of the man for whom the letters were intended. Tracers were sent out to every city and village in Minnesota, Nebraska and Dakota, and finally the lost heir was located. Sinclair learned that he was Earl of Caithness, after having been Lord Berriedale for a year without his knowledge.

Sinclair's titles dates from 1455. The family estates which descends to him include, besides parks and manors, 15,000 acres of land from which an annual rental of £5,000 or $25,000 is received. A house in town, on Belgrave Square, occupied by the young Earl and Countess of Caithness at the time of the death of the former, is not included in the inheritance, but remains in the possession of the countess. The larger but less valuable portion of the property is in Caithness county, Scotland, where is located the old family castle.

Here it was that Marie, Countess of Caithness and Duchess de Pomar, who has succeeded Mme. Blavatsky as the head of the Theosophist society in Europe, had the famous interview with the spirit of Mary Stewart, Queen of Scots. She was the wife of the fourteenth earl of Caithness. The interior of the castle was refitted during the reign there of the present high priestess of the Theosophists and is in a fairly good condition.

Sinclair has a fine property at Lakota and a large acreage of wheat. To sell would be to sacrifice the farm, and to leave his crop in the hands of others would mean a great loss. That he will not abandon his property here is certain, but that the peers in the house of lords will knock elbows with a plain Dakota farmer in the near future seems equally certain.

[Debrett's Peerage says that the earldom of Caithness became dormant in 1837 by the death of George Philips Alexander Sinclair, fifteenth earl of Caithness, without male issue of the Sinclair family. James Augustus Sinclair, born May [illegible] 1832, a justice of the peace of Aberdeen, is next heir male to the earldom, and becomes, as heir male of the fifteenth earl, the eldest son is described as "John Sutherland, of Berriedale Farm, North Dakota, U. S. A." born 1858, educated at Aberdeen university.]

Ohio Republicans Getting Badly Routed.

Gov. Campbell's Triumphant March Through the State.

Republican Editors Who Have Been Attacking the Governor's Personal Career See Where They Made a Mistake.

Columbus, Sept. 29.—(Special.)—Every mail brings to the democratic state executive committee glowing reports of the increase that will be made in the democratic vote. Coupled with this report comes an invitation asking Gov. Campbell to address meetings in the divers localities of the state. This will be an utter impossibility, for the reason that the executive committee and the governor have been in consultation several times and have mapped out the program of places where he will make speeches during the campaign, leaving a few blank dates to be filled at the governor's pleasure.

Nearly all the leading democrats of the state have sent letters to the committee saying that the speech of Gov. Campbell at Sidney was a key-note that every democrat should be proud of, and that its effect among the working men and the farmers was magical.

Nearly every republican paper of the state, in giving the attendance at the governor's meetings, confine the number to the hundred limit, when, in fact, the smallest meeting he has had exceeded 4,500, which was held at London on Saturday, and the cause of the small number of people being present was due to the fact that the train he was on was delayed on account of the breaking of some of the machinery of the locomotive.

Notwithstanding a delay of two hours and twenty minutes, he addressed 4,500 people in the little town of London.

Chairman Hahn and his henchmen over the state have received instructions to immediately stop the republican press from attacking Gov. Campbell personally and financially—in fact, it is stated in their order that he is the cleanest cut politician to-day in the Buckeye state, and his official record cannot be successfully attacked, but that a boomerang must be started about his extravagance; or, rather of the officials connected with his administration.

John and Ben.

Within the next 10 days the republicans will have completed all their nominations for both branches of the legislature, but those connected with Squire and his league of clubs say that Foraker will have a majority of the nominees in his favor, while, on the other hand, Sherman's friends say that Foraker is counting his chickens before they are hatched.

Foraker's friends are doing everything that they can to placate the farmers' alliance in close counties, knowing that they have a hatred for John Sherman on general principles, he having always been the friend and representative of great trusts, combinations and syndicates, and having voted for and offered the amendment demonetizing the silver dollar.

It is impossible for the Forakerites or the Sherman men to give any definite figures as to how the members now nominated will vote on the senatorial question, but Kurtz says, and everybody knows, that he was Foraker's private secretary, that "Ben" will have 63 of the 67 already nominated and 24 are conceded to Sherman and five are doubtful.

Jake Donaldson says that the Cuyahoga county delegation nomination on Saturday will be for Sherman without a doubt.

Squire Going to Beg.

Squire, who is president of the republican state league of clubs, will, in a few days, start for New York and Washington and other points in the east to beg campaign boodle, and, at the same time, will personally plead with the big guns to come to Ohio to help McKinley—in fact, he will have letters from nearly all the leading republicans of the state asking Secretary Blaine, Chauncey M. Depew, Clarkson, J. Slote Fasset and Tom Reed to come to Ohio to help save McKinley from destruction.

Conservative republicans of this city deprecate the sending of such a man after such able representatives, and gleefully remark that no man of good hard sense will respond to any invitation from Squire.

FIRE IN AN OIL HOUSE.

Disastrous Conflagration in Philadelphia.

Over Half a Million Dollars Worth of Property Consumed and a Number of Firemen Injured.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—Shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon fire broke out in the oil warehouse of Phillips & Cunningham at 136 North Delaware avenue. The flames soon gained headway and several alarms were turned in.

The fire went through the inflammable stock of the building and the structure was ablaze from cellar to roof in 20 minutes after the flames first broke out. Finding that the fire was beyond their control, the fireman quickly turned in four alarms, and a dozen engines, hose carts and trucks responded. Despite the utmost efforts of the firemen the flames spread west to Water street and to the rag warehouse of Jessup & Moore adjoining the burning oil store on the north. In a short time the warehouse at 127, 131 and 133 Water street were ablaze.

Philip and Charles Porter of engine company No. 29 were injured by exploding oil, while fighting the fire in the oil store and Frank Lowery of truck D was hurt by a fall from a ladder.

It was while the fire was at its height that the walls of Jessup & Moore's warehouse fell in, burying several firemen beneath them. The buried men were gotten out as quickly as possible, and as far as known at this time none were killed.

At 4 o'clock the firemen had succeeded in getting the fire practically under control. The loss is roughly estimated at $500,000.

The only firemen seriously hurt was Hoseman Sheehan, who is at the hospital suffering from internal injuries. Five others are in the hospital, but their injuries are not of a dangerous character. Conservative estimates place the loss at about $200,000. The loss of Phillips & Cunningham is covered by an insurance of $10,000.

The Armour Picking Co's. building is damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars, while the stock which Agent Silberman said was worth $100,000, is said to be damaged 50 per cent, covered by insurance in western companies. The other tenants, J. M. Rowe, Son & Co., claim that the damage to their stock will amount to $15,000. Their insurance amounts to $45,000.

James G. Kitchen & Co's wool warehouse, 135 N. Water street, was damaged mostly by water, from $40,000 to $50,000; insured for $60,000.

Koons, Schwartz & Co., No. 133 Water street, grocers' specialties, suffered some damage by water and smoke.

N. K. Fairbanks & Co., lard, 138 North Delaware avenue, lose $3,000.

George W. Elkins, 149 N. Front street, hops, lose $8,000.

Other property was damaged by smoke to the amount sufficient to bring the total up to the amount mentioned above.

IRISHMEN AT WAR,

And Ireland Suffers in the Meantime.

The Confederated Societies Issue an Address in Which They Make Some Pointed Remarks.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—The confederated Irish societies of Chicago have issued an address warning the Irish and the American people against the promoters of the Irish National league.

The objects of the promoters the address says, are as dishonest as their methods. The gathering represents nothing but the desperate needs of a gang of unscrupulous, political tricksters, its chief aim being to force Alexander Sullivan back into prominence and to place his confederate, Michael Davitt, at the head of the movement in Ireland as a recompense "for his coming to the rescue of the murderers of Dr. Cronin by a base and cowardly attack on the character of the murdered men."

RIOTS IN THE SOUTH.

A Reduction in Wages is Causing Bloodshed.

Marianna, Ark., Sept. 29.—Bands of riotous negroes have almost taken possession of Lee county, Ark. The killing of Tom Miller, a white man and agent for J. F. Frank, by the rioters and strikers here precipitated a serious state of affairs.

The indications for some time, indeed since the reduction of the price of picking cotton has been inaugurated, have been that there would be trouble between the blacks and whites.

Cotton picking has been suspended in Lee county for several days, and the pickers have refused to work for 50 cents per 100. On Saturday last an armed gang of about 100 mounted men took positions along the roadside leading to J. A. Frank's plantation.

The agent of Mr. Frank, Tom Miller, met the infuriated negroes and tried to dissuade them from their riotous intentions, but they shot him down without a moment's warning.

They proceeded on their way, cursing and abusing every white they met, and threatening all their property with destruction. When they reached the plantation known as "Park Place," the gin houses of Bond & Terrell were set on fire and burned to the ground, and afterwards many others in the neighborhood met a similar fate.

The demonstration on the part of the blacks has aroused the entire country, and the sheriff and Mr. Bond, with a posse of 50 men, are in pursuit of them.

It seems that the rioting negroes were baited with a barbecue in the canebrake near the Hodges place, and that the whites surrounded them in the cane last night.

No casualties are reported, except that two of the negroes effected an escape through the cane and attempted to cross the river at the Cartwright place, one receiving a bullet in the shoulder and the other getting a flesh wound in the leg.

Sleeplessness, nervous prostration, nervous dyspepsia, dullness, blues, opium habit, cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine. Samples free at druggists; by mail 10c. Miles Med. Co., Elkhart, Ind.

NOBODY WILL TAKE BLAIR

The Administration Elephant Grows Bigger.

The Odor of Guano Rises When He is Mentioned.

A Nice Lot of Men in Whom President Harrison Puts Confidence and Entrusts the Administration.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Should Henry W. Blair, the erstwhile endless chain orator of the senate and the author of all sorts of educational, total abstinence, Sunday rest and other paternalistic schemes for precipitating the millennium upon an unripe people, be appointed minister to Chili to succeed Pat Egan, as it is intimated he will be, another ghastly old skeleton of the republican party will be dragged from its closet.

Mr. Blair's adventures with his mouth have caused him no end of trouble in the past. His long winded characterization of the heathen Chinee in the senate led the emperor of the flowery kingdom to quietly inform Mr. Blair that as minister to the land Mr. Blair's appointment had not been received with enthusiasm.

A wink is as good as a nod to a blind horse, as Father Front once sagely remarked, and Mr. Blair took the hint and concluded not to obtrude his presence where it was not wanted.

Since his practical rejection by China, Mr. Blair has been industriously seeking another job, and the president is disposed to aid him in the search providing a place can be found which Mr. Blair's past utterances will not preclude him from filling.

As the investigation of Pat Egan, now in progress, promises to result in the recall of that eminent Irish-American, the president is inclined to select the Chilian mission as a suitable exile for the forlorn New Hampshire ex-statesman.

But alas, how the wind is not tempered to the shorn lamb. Poor Henry W. Blair's connection with the Peruvian and Chilian guano claims, which created such a scandal 10 years ago, rises like a horrible dream to prevent his appointment.

And it will not down.

Although the result of the investigation made by the house of representatives in 1882 did not snitch the character of any of the public officials involved, in the language of the topical song, it came very near it.

It left an odor of guano about the clothes of such a distinguished statesman as James G. Blaine, and if Jake Shipherd had not refused to answer the questions which the committee put to him there is no predicting what might not have happened. Harry Windsor Blair, then senator of the United States, was Shipherd's attorney.

The history of the events leading up to the investigation is full of interest. In Chili and Peru great beds of fertilizers, both mineral and animal, had been discovered and the fortune hunters of the world were striving, tooth and nail, to get a foothold in those countries in their mad rush for wealth. The guano and nitrate beds were as enticing to adventurers as the gold fields of California and Australia had been.

The money to be made in these beds was not computed in thousands, but millions. They were the mines whence fortunes rivaling in magnificence and splendor anything that Aladdin ever conjured were to be obtained.

The intervention of the United States was the magic lamp by which these creations of wealth were to be evoked by American speculators.

In 1881, when President Garfield appointed Steven N. Hurlburt of Illinois minister to Peru, Chili was at war with that country and the Americans interested in what were known as the "Peruvian claims," were anxious to secure the intervention of the United States in order to preserve legal autonomy.

When Hurlburt was sent to Peru Mr. Blaine is said to have written on the margin of his commission, "Go it, Steve." Whether this was true or not, Steve "went it." He was soon up to his neck in guano and nitrate. He was charged with furthering the interests of a certain company.

This, of course, brought the others, of which Jake Shipherd, of New York, was the representative, and Blair, the attorney, down upon him and the whole thing ended in a congressional investigation to determine whether certain public officials were not interested in business transactions in which the interference of this country was expected or requested.

Chili and Peru were at war and the United States was friendly to both belligerents. Its position as the great republican power of the western hemisphere made this country the natural advisor, mediator and possibly the ultimate arbitrator of the quarrel. Chili looked to England, while Peru looked for interference, if not sympathy, to the United States.

The Americans interested in the intervention of the United States were those who had purchased or otherwise acquired certain immense claims against the Peruvian government.

If they had little foundation in fact they were at least magnificent in proportion and as splendid to the eye of the imagination as McKinley's protective rainbow. They were the Cochet claims.

Alexander Cochet was a French scientist, who in 1840 discovered the fertilizing properties of guano. Under a Peruvian law he claimed, or his friends did for him, one-third of the value of the product of the guano field by right of discovery.

This amounted in 1880 to about $50,000,000.

Cochet, notwithstanding the enormity of the "claim," became so poor he could not buy bread and about 1858 he died a beggar in Paris. He left an illegitimate son, Gelnicr Cocuet, who sought to enforce his father's claim.

The Peruvian Guano company, composed of Americans, and operating under a charter granted by the state of Georgia, claimed to own the Cochet claim by assignment.

Another claim against Peru was that of a Frenchman named Jean Theophile Landreau, whose brother and partner was a naturalized American citizen. They claimed to have discovered new nitrate and guano deposits from which the government had realized $1,200,000,000. They demanded their share, the legal one-third, which was the modest sum of $400,000,000. They offered to compromise, however, for $150,000,000 spot cash and call it square. Jake Sniphcrd claimed control of the Cochet and Landreau claims. He was a peerless vagabond, but the immensity of his scheme dazzled New England capitalists. Blair's credulity was played upon and he went into it up to his ears.

The third party interested in the intervention of the United States was the Credit Industrial company of France, which in 1872 held $75,000,000 of the Peruvian loan.

This company offered to cancel the Peruvian indebtedness and assume all other outstanding loans for a monopoly of the guano and nitrate trades and besides to pay a royalty to the Peruvian government of $10 on every ton exported.

Ten dollars was also, according to the charter of this company, to go into the sinking fund, to redeem outstanding liabilities and the remaining 80 per cent. was to go to the stockholders of this company.

Morton, Bliss & Co., of New York, were the American agents of the company and were to have charge of the shipping and sale of the product and to receive therefor 5 per cent. of the profits. Levi P. Morton, now vice-president of the United States, then minister to France, was the senior member of the firm.

All three of these interests were anxious for the United States to step in and preserve the autonomy of Peru in order that their business speculations might not suffer. The situation caused comment, mysterious hints of the loss of certain papers in the Peruvian correspondence were dropped, scandal followed and at last a republican house was forced to stay the agitation by what purported to be an investigation.

It was discovered, as had been intimated, that half a dozen imported letters to Secretary Blaine from Jake Shipherd were missing from the files of the state department but the committee used the whitewash liberally.

Jake Shipherd was made the scapegoat. He was the principal witness and he was mobbed by his own petard. Documentary evidence was adduced to show that he had been dickering with Minister Hurlburt before that official fell into the clutches of the rival company and had offered to reserve $250,000 in stock for him and his friends.

About the most spicy bit of testimony offered during the investigation was by Shipherd when he recounted his conversation with Blaine, had in the presence of Senator Blair. Mr. Blaine refused to believe that Hurlburt had sold out. "Oh, no," he said repeatedly to Shipherd, "you can't catch Steve; he wasn't born yesterday."

On the principal points, however, Shipherd declined to testify, and as Hurlburt and Kilpatrick, the Chilian minister, had died in the meantime the investigation accomplished nothing.

Blaine had gone out of the state department, so that the only person in official life when the investigation was in progress was Senator Blair. As he was not included in the scope of the inquiry or subject to impeachment by the house the committee declined to characterize his action, though it could not refrain from giving him a slap en passant.

"Henry W. Blair," the committee's report said, "while a senator of the United States, accepted the position of counsel for the Peruvian company, thus lending great influence to the visionary plans and schemes of Shipherd. While the committee has nothing to do with Mr. Blair except as a witness, we cannot refrain from expressing the opinion that public officials cannot guard too scrupulously against engaging in enterprises where their private interests are brought in direct conflict with their public duties."

After the investigation the schemes of the companies suffered and none of them were ever consummated. Col. North, of England, known as the nitrate king, however, has made out of Peru since that time one of the largest fortunes in the world. He is the Rockefeller of England. He was of material assistance to the insurgent party in the late revolution.

Blair's appointment in view of the foregoing facts would lay the administration open to severe criticism.

WILL BE A GREAT RUN.

Vamoose, Norwood and Yankee Doodle to Race.

The Fastest Steam Yachts in the World to Contest for the $500 Prize.

New York, Sept. 29.—Wherever yachtsmen congregate the proposed race of fast steam yachts next Saturday, under the auspices of the American Yacht club, is the principal topic of discussion. The flyers, which it is safe to predict will be entered for the $500 prize, are the Vamoose, Norwood, Now Then and Yankee Doodle. The first and last of these have formally entered.

Other yachts of the same class which will probably go over the course, if they do not regularly enter for the prize, are the Javelin and the government torpedo boat Cushing, attached to the White Squadron.

Preparations for the race are being made by the owners of the yachts and by the American Yacht club, whose spokesman, G. W. Hall, chairman of the Regatta committee, says that this will undoubtedly be the most interesting test of speed on the water that has ever been witnessed.

The contest will interest yacht experts the country over, because for the first time the relative merits of the Herreshoffs and C. D. Mosher as builder will be tested. The Yankee Doodle and the Norwood are Mosher's boats, while the others, including the Cushing, came from the Herreshoff's yards.

The Yankee Doodle had been lost to sight in the excitement over the Norwood-Vamoose race but her owners, the McBride Brothers of Philadelphia, were not willing to allow her to remain in obscurity. As soon as they heard of the race, they telegraphed Mr. Hall and formally entered her.

The tenor of a letter which followed the telegram was one of confidence in their little racer, and though on account of her small power as compared with the Norwood and Vamoose she can hardly defeat them, except by virtue of unforseen circumstances. Yachtsmen who have seen her say that she will make a strong bid for third place.

The owner of the Vamoose, W. B. Hearst, was not in town last week, but he has been in correspondence with Mr. Hall, and has shown that he is heartily in favor of the race, and willing to agree to any reasonable conditions laid down by the club.

Mr. Hearst intended to have the Vamoose at Washington yesterday, but on learning that the Yankee Doodle had been formally entered, which includes a race if he enters his yacht, he telegraphed to Capt. Stanwood to get ready.

Accordingly, the Vamoose was unloaded of the stores which had been placed in her; ventilators, life-preservers, and everything not required in a race, were stripped off, and she was put in flying trim. A trial was to have been made yesterday of the new three-bladed Zesc wheel, which arrived the day before from San Francisco. But as it had to be bored out to fit the shaft, the trial will be postponed until after the Vamoose had been on the ways at the dry dock.

If the Zesc wheel drives the Vamoose faster, or as fast as the one now in use, she will steam with it on Thursday night up the sound, and lay in New London until the hour of the race. Should the new wheel not prove a success, the Vamoose will have to hustle to replace the old one one and get ready for Saturday's contest.

It was said yesterday by friends of Norman L. Munro that he was waiting to hear if any mischance, like the failure of the new wheel, would keep the Vamoose out of the race before he formally entered the Norwood. Mr. Munro is anxious only to try conclusions with the Vamoose.

He has been assured by the American Yacht club that their rules will absolutely prevent any squabble or misunderstanding. Nothing could be simpler, say the club members, than the straight away course, as laid out from a point off New London harbor to the finishing line off Milton Point. All the yachts will have to do is to start from a stake boat, anchored east of Race Rock, and steam to the finish.

COLLIDED AT SEA.

New York, Sept. 29.—The schooner Daylight, which collided 80 miles off Fire island on Saturday night with the Ancnor line steamer Circassia, arrived in the bay this morning and anchored there. The vessels jib boom and bowsprit are gone and her bow is badly smashed. Nearly all her timbers and planks are strained and she is reported as making water very fast. The Daylight under command of Capt. Hodgeson was bound from Boston to Philadelphia at the time of the accident.

TRIED AND PROVEN TRUE.

No Room for Doubt—Mr. McLean Pointedly States How He Was Relieved of An Aggravated Catarrhal Trouble.

Catarrh is the most common of all diseases in this vicinity and is probably the cause, directly and indirectly, of more deaths than any other chronic disease we know of. A person who suffers from catarrh is so gradually and insidiously run down in health and their constitutions so weakened that they are more liable to attacks of acute diseases, and are in constant danger of succumbing to some form of fever or lung disease. When taken in its incipiency catarrh can be easily cured, and even in its most chronic form it only takes, as a rule, some three months to cure it.

The case of Mr Charles E. McLean, residing at 935 Indiana avenue, connected with the dyeing establishment of Roth & Friedman, illustrates how the evil effects of a chronic catarrhal trouble may be overcome by Drs. Copeland and Buffett's method of treatment.

MR. C. E. MCLEAN, 935 INDIANA AVE.

In speaking of his case Mr. McLean said: "I had been sick and wretched with this miserable catarrhal trouble which had undermined my system for years, and each day it seemed to be growing

WORSE AND WORSE.

"My head was racked with pains. My nostrils would stop up constantly. The mucus would drop into my throat, causing me to hawk and spit continually. My throat became raw and sore. I felt tired in the morning upon arising. My limbs pained me. I had both dull and sharp pains in the chest. My appetite was very poor. Nothing seemed to nourish me. I grew despondent and irritable. In fact I felt that if I could not get relief I would soon become so debilitated had I grown. My days were spent in misery.

"I called at Drs. Copeland and Buffett's office and after being examined I took treatment. They have worked wonders in my case. My troubles have disappeared, owing to the skillful treatment I received of these physicians. I cannot recommend them too highly."

A Representative Citizen's Testimony

Mr. Eugene McCarthy, residing at 516 Knower street, a well-known member of the Toledo police force for the past six years gives the following voluntary testimony. He said:

"I have been for a number of years past a constant sufferer from acute catarrh. For a time I was obliged to quit work for a few days at a time, some had my affliction become. I had tried nearly everything, but to no avail. Since treating with Drs. Copeland and Buffett my trouble has rapidly grown better—so much so that this season is the first for many years that I was able to be constantly at work. They have made a remarkable change in my condition, and I most heartily indorse and recommend these gentlemen."

THE PROSPEROUS SIXTH.

Its Inhabitants Contented and Hopeful.

Interviews With Prominent East Side Citizens.

The Population Has Increased Wonderfully—New Manufacturing Interests Spoken of—Matters of Interest.

It is safe to assert that if every ward in the city of Toledo has grown and progressed in every way as the Sixth ward has during the summer that is almost ended, it will be but a very few years, certainly less than a decade, until the Future Great has doubled in population, in wealth and in the magnitude of its business interests.

The development of that portion of the city this year has been phenomenal and unparalelled in the history of Toledo. There has been no efforts made to boom the ward, but there has been a constant and upward tendency in prices and in demand for property of all kinds.

The greater portion of the new building has been done in the lower and down river part of the ward in the vicinity of Ironville, and about the Malleable Iron works and Craig's ship yards. Here, where last March were only vacant lots and fields are now substantial and handsome homes, inhabited by a contented and industrious people.

Southeast Toledo has also made great strides forward, and is keeping up its end in great shape. Still the fact that the big manufacturing interests are located and will naturally seek locations along the lower river front, militate against the upper portion of the sixth.

The bad roads which have so long cursed this part of the city will soon be a thing of the past. It is expected that by the time the winter season is here the roads from Ironville to the Cherry street bridge will be paved and in good shape for the heavy hauling so necessary there.

Workmen are now engaged on the finishing touches of Front street, and the grading of Cherry from Front to the bridge is almost completed.

A BEE this morning visited this portion of the city and found the business men out there highly elated at the progress made during the summer.

Capt. M. T. Huntly said: "There is no reason why the Sixth ward should not soon be the largest, wealthiest and most populous of all the wards in the city. It has all the advantages, and what it has lacked for years it now possesses, viz., push and enterprise on the part of the citizens. I took a drive last Sabbath and to say I was surprised at the way houses have been built this summer would but mildly express it. Down the river in the immediate neighborhood of the ship yards, there is a good sized city all by itself, and further down in the vicinity of Ironville, the same condition of affairs was noticeable."

"What is needed over here, captain, to further push the development of this part of the city?"

"Nothing. All we need and all we want is time and people to look at the superior advantages we offer. Where is there a city on navigable water that offers the inducements that East Toledo, or now properly speaking the Sixth ward, does. We have a splendid water frontage, plenty of fuel, natural gas or oil, good railroad facilities, good roads and electric cars. What now is wanted? What now is necessary? Cherry street bids fair to become a popular and beautiful street, but I fear that the houses that have been built there recently are not of the kind which will make real estate valuable. However, there is no disposition on the part of the people to repeat this mistake, and residents and property owners on other streets are more careful in this respect. The construction of the Wheeling & Lake Erie shops, which has already begun and under way, will employ an army of workmen and push forward our interests. What we want is people and money, and we are getting both very rapidly. Some of the men who a few years ago derided our ward are now eager to invest their money here. This is a straw and shows how the wind blows."

Mr. John J. Duffy, who resides on Parker street, is also confident that no portion of the city is equal in any respect to the Sixth ward.

"We have grown very rapidly this year, and a look over the ward will convince anybody that we have a great future in store. Not only have a great number of houses been constructed, but in addition our real estate valuation has increased rapidly and without speculative features, is substantial and of an upward tendency. We expect a few new manufacturing interests this year, and then look out for us."

D. S. W. Pickward: "The building of the Wheeling shops will help us wonderfully, and then you know that land has been purchased down in that vicinity upon which will be erected a vast carriage manufactory that will employ hundreds of workmen. It will be built at once I understand. The Malleable Iron works owing to the class of labor it employs, has not been of as much importance as was thought it would be. Most of these men are Hungarians who work cheaply, and do not contribute to the growth of the city materially."

George Sheets: "We have grown wonderfully and are entirely satisfied with the existing condition of affairs. Business is good, although money is somewhat close. Much building has been done in the Sixth ward this year, and if the present gait is kept up some of the other wards will soon be compelled to surrender their claims of superior wealth, population and manufacturing interests.

Dr. Josh Squires: "I do not know of a man over here who is not satisfied with the way our ward has developed this summer. We need some more manufactories, and we will get them because we have all the advantages in our favor. Our population is increasing very rapidly, and the health of the people has been very good, taking everything into consideration."

Joseph Munch—"How is business? First-class. Could not be better. We need a bank over here and we intend to have one before very long. I am not at liberty just now to give you any of the particulars, but in a few weeks, if nothing happens, I think you can learn something that will be of value to you. I will be interested in the new venture, I think. Grown? Well, I guess so; we have grown, and we will show you something next year."

Dr. Hathaway—"Business is excellent in Southeast Toledo, and many houses have been built in that portion of the city. The health of the people up my way is very good, and now that we are apparently to have cooler weather, much prevalent sickness will cease. We are all proud of the advancement of Southeast Toledo this year."

ST. FRANCIS DE SALES

School's Will Reopen Monday Under the Supervision of the Christian Brothers.

A largely attended meeting of the parishioners of St. Francis de Sales church was held in the school building last evening for the purpose of arranging for the reception of the community of Christian Brothers, which is expected here Friday or Saturday.

It was announced that the school would reopen Monday—the boys in charge of the Christian Brothers and the girls under the supervision of the Sisters.

It has been decided to use the Cook building as a residence only, and in the meantime the basement of the church will be used as a schoolroom, while the Brothers will have charge of affairs in the school rooms proper.

The committee appointed at the previous meeting to devise means and ways for furnishing the residence reported a good deal of success, and it was authorized to proceed at once and purchase the necessary furnishings.

Mr. Cook has had at 240 and 242 Summit street to-morrow, 10 a. m. No mercy will be shown to balance C. L. Lucs Co. stock.

RECKLESS MOTORMEN.

How They Endanger Lives and Property on the Cherry Street Bridge.

Harbor Master Sheldon reports that motor men on the Consolidated street railway lines crossing the Cherry street bridge are very careless about the draw, and sometimes when it is open they run very close to the edge, thus endangering the lives of the passengers, for if a brake should give out there would be nothing to prevent the car from going into the river.

Last evening about dark the engineer signalled by the customary whistle that he was about to open the draw for an approaching vessel. An electric car was on the bridge, but instead of stopping he ran on full speed. The draw had commenced to open but the engineer observing that the car could not be controlled stopped the bridge. The car ran on to the draw, but off the track as the draw had started to open. If the draw had not been stopped the car would have gone into the river.

The law requires that cars shall stop 15 feet from an open draw and the motor men should be required to comply with this regulation for the public safety.

GREAT ARE THE LAKES,

Inland Seamanship Gets a Big Compliment.

The North German Lloyd Steamship Company to Build a Line of Whalebacks.

Lake men have always maintained, and have been considerably laughed at for it, that lake navigation was far more difficult than ocean marine and that any boat that could be handled in the narrow and crooked, and at the same time turbulent waters of the lakes, could safely navigate any water on the globe.

The cruise of the Benson and Francis Palmer, as well as the trip of the brig Oak Leaf, gave lake men all the proof they wanted that their ideas had been demonstrated to be practical.

When McDougal built his first whaleback he did not find many enthusiastic backers on the lake, and along the ocean coast he found many old seafaring men who said his boats would prove to be coffins.

They have navigated the lakes and the ocean; they have quieted all prejudices, and now one of the greatest steamship companies in the world has taken hold of the idea and will build a line of whalebacks, as the following cablegram from London, Sept. 29.—The North German Lloyd Steamship company has advertised for bids for the construction of several passenger and freight steamships of the "whaleback" pattern, of about 6,000 tons burden. The passenger accommodations are to be in a structure built above the "whaleback."

This fact, together with the equally important one that the congress of the United States has at last got its eyes opened to the importance of lake navigation, and will give it the attention which its magnitude warrants, is cheering news to men who live on lakes, and who have always maintained that the importance of the inland marine was underestimated.

ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT

Given By Wapaukonica Lodge to Their Ladies and Friends.

About two weeks ago the members of Wapaukonica lodge, I. O. O. F., decided on a date for their annual entertainment given for the social benefit of their families and near friends. The committee on arrangements labored hard to make the affair a success and it can be said by those present last evening that they know just how to get up an entertainment. About 250 members with their wives and invited friends assembled at the temple. After a few appropriate remarks in relation to the order by Past Grand Master M. Bartlett, the musical program was announced and executed as follows: Overture, orchestra; tenor solo, Geo. Leibius; soprano solo, Miss Susie Love; mandolin solo, Waite Bros.; bass solo, Ben Love; recitation, Miss Bessie Hollenbeck; selections, the Cricket Serenade club; Pink of Perfection, Gus Leibius and Chas. O'Brien; Amaranth select, Leibius Bros., Chas. O'Brien and Commessy.

Following the above supper was served in the dining room which did great credit to the well-known caterer, Chas. Paine, whose services were donated to the lodge. The affair was a big success in every respect and the members of Wapaukonica are very thankful to those who helped to make it such.

Democrats Select an Excellent Executive Committee.

Jacob Mandler Replaces T. W. Childs for Treasurer—Grand Rally at Air Line Junction.

The democratic county central committee performed a good day's work this forenoon when it selected the following excellent executive committee to run the campaign in Lucas county and the district: Parks Hone, Frank J. Cheney, M. J. Cooney, M. J. Gavin, Frank Coleman, W. J. Gill and August Ochsle.

The committee will meet at the office of Mr. Hone at 4 p. m., and Mr. Hone will probably be elected chairman.

Mr. Childs, candidate for treasurer, notified the central committee that owing to ill health he would be obliged to withdraw.

There was quite an interesting contest over his successor. Mr. Sylvester Lamb and Mr. Jacob Mandler both wanted to tackle Mr. Sam Hunter.

Each had their friends, and the vote which resulted in the selection of Mr. Mandler was a very close one.

Mr. Mandler promises making the race for all it is worth, and Mr. Hunter is not going to have a walkaway by any means. The fight will be a redhot one from now on.

Friday evening the democrats will hold a grand rally at Air line Junction. Addresses will be delivered by the eloquent Capt. George W. Bell of Washington, D. C., and Mr. John W. Cunary, Senator Ryan's running mate for the senate.

Arrangements will be made to have electric cars run as often and as late to and from the Junction on Friday evening as possible, and every democrat who possibly can should make it a point to be on hand.

Dennis, W. G. Farnsworth, commissioner, W. H. Strong; coroner, James Watson; infirmary director, B. Campbell. Another meeting will be held next Monday night.

STOCK OF GROCERIES SOLD.

The stock of groceries formerly owned by George W. Young on Adams street, and recently taken possession of by Pliny Watson & Co., wholesale grocers, on a claim of $750, was sold to-day to Hoyt & Crider for $1,000.

These gentlemen are comparative strangers in the city and will open the store for business at once.

SICKNESS AMONG THE POOR.

"If this chilly weather holds out it will bring the poor and needy to us in large numbers," said infirmary Superintendent Kirkby. "Many who can keep going during warm weather are obliged to appeal to us as soon as a cold snap comes. These sudden changes also create much sickness and makes matters worse. Yet we kept the physicians busy last week with sickness among the poor. There were not many serious cases such as diphtheria or scariet fever, but minor disease prevailed to a great extent."

QUIET IN THE HARBOR.

Business about the harbor is very quiet and but little is doing in marine circles. All kinds of shipment have fallen off, though considerable coal is still being sent out. The passenger business is nearing an end. The past season has been an exceedingly good one for the passenger business and the warm weather of this month added considerable to the season. The weather would decide as to how long the Flora will continue runs to Detroit, but the Arundel will stay on the Island route until November, handling fruit. The Flora will also stay on the Mackinaw route until late.

MEMORIAL HALL FOR POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

At the meeting of the board of councilmen last evening, Mr. Caldwell introduced a resolution which was passed, requesting the trustees of Memorial hall to allow political conventions to meet there. This would be a good thing, and would also bring some revenue to the building. Most of the halls in the city, except that in Pythian Castle, are too small to accommodate county and district conventions, and there is need of more accommodations. If Memorial hall could be used for that purpose, more conventions would likely meet here.

UP IN THE WEATHER OFFICE.

Observer Hagen's assistant, Mr. A. G. Burns, has been ordered to duty at Detroit. He will be succeeded by Mr. Lysight, of the Detroit office.

The weather bureau office here displayed the new light signals last night for the first time, to give warning for the squalls. These new signals are red and white gas lanterns of large power and can be seen for miles. A red light will indicate easterly winds, and a white light above a red light will indicate westerly winds. These lights take the place of the flag signals which are displayed in the day time.

ST. JOHN'S NEW PASTOR.

The following note, taken by the BEE from the Kendallville, Ind. Sun, during the Island Park Assembly, will be read with interest at the present time, since Mr. Fish is to take up his residence in Toledo:

"Dr. A. J. Fish, of Lima, is putting life into the C. L. S. C. this year. His round table talks of ten minutes each day are crowded with science, history and spice, the liking of all who attend them, and we are pleased to say, that the number of persons going regularly to Chautauqua hall is larger than ever before. His talk on 'Stones,' in which he showed Jesus as a geologist, was richly enjoyed by every one present.

THE EMERSON CLASS.

The second meeting of the Emerson class was held yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Nora S. Halstead at her lovely new home, corner Monroe and Lawrence avenue. Both Emerson and Shakespeare were discussed, Mrs. Harmon giving the paper of the afternoon, the subject of which was Shakespeare the poet. The paper was instructive and interesting. Selected readings from Shakespeare were given by Mrs. John Wheeler, and Emerson's essay upon character was read, followed by discussions. After quotations from the author by the members light refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Jennings, Huron street.

FISHING PROSPECTS.

Fishing has opened up down in the bay, and the fishermen will be kept busy for the next few weeks. The season nearly opened two weeks ago, but on account of the exceedingly warm weather nothing was done. This change will bring the fish, if there be any. The season, however, will only last about six weeks more and it will take some hustling to make up for lost time.

The quantity of fish that may be caught is a question which no one can answer, and a fisherman does not know how profitable the season is until it is over. Fish are a very uncertain crop. The indications, however, point to a good catch, and the dealers are sanguine of good fish and plenty.

ARRIVED ON THE NICK OF TIME.

Yesterday afternoon at about 4:30, Henry Merrell prevented what might have been a serious conflagration and saved two lives. Mr. Merrell keeps a grocery store on Tecumseh street. Shortly after 4 o'clock he discovered smoke issuing from the windows of Mrs. Price's house, near by. He rushed to the residence, and in one of the rooms found Mrs. Price, with her little two-weeks old baby unconscious of any danger. When Mr. Merrell informed her that the house was on fire she fainted, and it was with difficulty that he succeeded in getting her and the baby out before being suffocated by the smoke. By this time the neighbors had attempted to send in an alarm, but none knew how to work the box. They all turned in and by hard work soon got the fire out. The loss was small, as the fire was confined to one room.

SUIT ON A NOTE.

Melvina M. Wood, as administrator of the estate of Samuel E. Wood, began suit in common pleas court to-day against John M. Brickenbaugh, et al, to foreclose a mortgage given to secure a note on which the plaintiff claims a balance of $1,300.

P. H. DOWLING'S APPOINTMENT.

Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R., General Palmer, of Albany, in his general orders No. 1 appoints Capt. P. H. Dowling of this city a member of the committee on security of departments. Capt. Dowling is an energetic G. A. R. man and Toledo members will appreciate the courtesy.

FRANK SMITH WITH THE MEN.

Judging from the red-hot manner in which evangelist Smith goes at his hearers, one might suppose he was going to get ahead of the weather in warming up the young men. The talk in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. last night was worthy of commendation. To-night he will addres the young men for the last time.

ANOTHER OIL RICHMOND.

The Electric Refining Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000. The officers are: G. C. Dunham, president; T. W. Rickenbaugh, vice-president; G. W. Aiken, secretary and treasurer; C. H. Whelan, superintendent. The company has opened their lubricating department at 329 Water street, and will be ready to manufacture all kinds and grades of lubricating oils and greases by Oct. 1. Its specialties will be frictionless oils possessing the highest degree of lubricating power known to modern science. Messrs. Aiken and Whelan, who have charge of the business, are experts in their line and have had a thorough experience in the refining and manufacturing of all kinds of petroleum products. The company expects also to deal in animal and vegetable oils of all kinds.

WRECKED ON THE ROCAS.

The Blossom Went to Pieces in a Storm.

Agonizing Cries of the Shipwrecked People Could Be Heard But No Aid Rendered.

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 29.—A tragic shipwreck is reported from Exploit's Burnt Island, N. F. It is stated that the schooner Blossom, struck Gull island in a gale. There were five women on board. One of the men jumped in the water and clung to a cliff against which he was dashed. He passed a terrible night in a fierce struggle for life. The agonizing cries of those who held to the wreck, he says, are still ringing in his ears, but he could do nothing and they were soon dashed into the sea and drowned.

ENDED HIS MISERY.

Dr. Schwan, of Tiffin, Commits Suicide.

After Years of Suffering He Sought Relief Through Death in a Lonely Spot in the Woods.

Tiffin, Sept. 29.—(Special)—Dr. F. W. Schwan, a well-known and popular physician, committed suicide some time during the day yesterday.

The body was found this morning in a piece of woods about three miles south of the city.

He had driven out to the spot about noon yesterday, it is thought, and hitching his horse to a tree at the side of the road, walked into the woods a short distance and shot himself through the head, the pistol rendering clinched in his right hand.

Dr. Schwan was a great sufferer from spinal disease and it is thought this, in connection with the effects of the drugs to which he had resorted to allay pain, had affected his brain. He was aged about 50 years, and a veteran of the late war.

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

London wheat market turn dearer. Weather cold and rainy. Liverpool wheat dull, quotations 1-2 to 1 pence lower; corn firm.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,445,898 bu, compared with 542,254 bu on the same day last year.

The imports into the United Kingdom for the week were 2,084,000 bu of wheat and 209,000 bbls of flour, equal to 3,924,000 bu of wheat, and 720,000 bu of corn.

The quantity of flour and wheat on ocean passage decreased last week 1,728,000 bu, being 480,000 bu. to the united kingdom and 1,248,000 bu to the continent.

Our table herein of available wheat and corn shows an increase of 589,923 bu. wheat, and a decrease of 570,326 bu. corn.

The United Kingdom's supply of breadstuffs—According to the New York produce Exchange Weekly, the supply of breadstuffs in the United Kingdom for the week ending Sept. 19, was 475,000 bushels more than the estimated consumption, and for 10 weeks ending Sept. 19 the quantity was 5,212,000 bushels less than the estimated consumption. This statement agrees with above authority of Sept. 25 and adding result for subsequent two weeks.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 903,644 bu in excess of the corresponding week in 1890.

The export clearances yesterday from four Atlantic points were 241,162 bu of wheat, and flour to an aggregate of 450,000 bu. Exports of corn were 228,474 bu.

English markets as reported herein are rather firmer in London and lower for wheat in Liverpool.

English Quotations Again.

Herein will be found an extract from the London Mark Lane Express. Its quotations are widely different from those we get daily by the "Western Union Telegraph Co." The Express quotes California at 39 shillings per quarter in London against 43.19 in our daily report. It quotes Mexican Red Winter at 44.14 against the daily report 39.16. Yesterday we referred to the fact that Liverpool quotations for winter wheat were 11c to 11 1-2c under California, compared with 1 1-2 to 2c at corresponding date in 1890. We despair of ever learning the mystery of English quotations.

Exports.

We have exported in 12 weeks 53,000,000 bu more of wheat, but last week shipments indicate a reduced pace, and it is shown in the reduction of the ocean stock of 1,728,000 bu.

Three Chief Shippers of Breadstuffs.

The Liverpool "Corn Trade News" gives the following comparative statement:

America shipped from August 2 to Sept. 12, 1891, 35,784,000 bu of wheat; India 6,800,000 bu, Russia and Black sea 12,592 bu. The shipments from Russia and the Black sea look very large.

Clover Seed Market.

London, Sept. 16.—Messrs. John Shaw & Sons, seed merchants, of Great Maze Pond, London, S. E., report today's market thinly attended. Clover seeds kept quiet, but steady.

The receipts of this commodity at Toledo last week were 6,533 bags, shipments 1,344 bags. In the corresponding week in 1890 the receipts were 2,365 bags, shipments 2,005 bags. Since September 1 the receipts have been 12,340 bags, and the shipments 2,369 bags.

The exports from New York for the week ending September 19, were 524 bags, and since January 1 to September 19, 43,892 bags, compared with 34,175 bags in the corresponding period in 1890.

London, Sept. 29.—1:00 p. m.—Wheat cargoes off coast at opening, quiet; maize, nothing offering. Wheat cargoes on passage and for shipment, turn dearer; maize steadier. Weather cold and rainy.

Liverpool, Sept. 29.—1:00 p. m.—Wheat market dull, demand poor, holders offer moderately. American mixed corn firm, 6s. Red western spring wheat No. 2 to No. 1, 8s 11d@8s 11 1-2d; winter wheat No. 2 to No. 1, 7s 11d@8s; Cala. wheat No. 2 to No. 1, 8s 7 1-2@8s 8d. Wheat and corn off coast, demand poor.

BRITISH GRAIN TRADE.

The average price in London is 36s 7d. Foreign wheats are steadier, though prices are rather against buyers. California is quoted at 39s, Oregon at 43s 9d, and American winter at 43s 4d. The corn market is depressed and prices have declined 9d. American new crop is quoted at 23s for January shipment. Barley values are unaltered. Rye is 9d lower. Oats are steady. At to-day's market there was a better tone and the selling was more active. English and foreign wheats were unchanged. English flour advanced 1s per sack. Corn was 3d lower. Barley was down 6d. Beans and peas were 3d lower. Oats were steady.

Oklahoma would better wait till her boundaries are established before she begins to cry out for statehood.

Thanks to the several hundred per cent. duty on pearl button imports, a manufactory will be established in this country—in the penitentiary at Auburn, N. Y. Hurrah for protection to American (convict) labor.

Secretary Blaine is not a sick man, but the condition of his health will not permit him to make speeches for McKinley in Ohio. The secretary is wiser than his wont in this instance. The spectacle of the free trade (limited) advocate campaigning for the hide-bound prohibitive tariff candidate would be too exhilarating, even in Ohio.

News from Chile is to the effect that the junta is behaving with insolence toward the American minister, and that American interests there are threatened. If this be true, the scream of the American eagle will be heard all the way across the Pacific. ... have Balmaceda's man Friday, our Minister Egan, to thank for it, and the state department that appointed him.

A recent census bulletin on the coal product and distribution in the United States gives the amount of coal consumed in Toledo in the census year 1890 as 63,583 tons anthracite and 123,968 tons bituminous. In these figures is included all coal used at the point by railroad companies and all delivered here to steam vessels for their own fuel. The natural gas fires of the city have materially diminished its consumption of coal.

There is this to be said for Emperor William's oft repeated assurance that no European war is desired or will be entered upon: He is in position to maintain peace, even if he has to fight for it. Chancellor Von Caprivi, recently restored to the emperor's favor, is the best to speak upon the political situation in Europe, and his opinion is that his royal master will direct all efforts toward the maintenance of peace. If Germany is sincere and firm in this attitude there will be no war in Europe.

The convict labor troubles in Tennessee will now be taken into the courts. The endeavor will be to show that the sub-lease system is illegal. The case of a convict worked at Briceville, and who files a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, is now before the county court. Without doubt the legality of the sub-lease system will be argued before the supreme court before the final word of the law is spoken. The opponents of the convict lease system will command the sympathy of the general public so long as they endeavor to secure its overthrow by constitutional and legal methods.

The Presbytery of Rochester, N. Y., has snapped its fingers at the General Assembly and revised the Confession of Faith for itself. It has modified the clause "God hath predestinated some of mankind unto life," into "God hath predestinated a multitude whom no man can number." This will seem to be a very weak effort indeed, as it does not remove at all the stumbling block of "predestination" but simply allows that "some" may include more in number than has been according to previous belief. The remainder of the clause "the rest of mankind God was pleased to pass by and to ordain to dishonor and wrath," was so utterly cruel it could not be softened and so was expunged entirely. And the wonder is, will the theologians of the general assembly smile upon the independent action of the Rochester Presbytery?

The secretary of state and attorney-general of Ohio have sat down upon a Toledo local that wished to amend its articles so as to come under the savings and loan law and do a general banking business. To make this intelligible, the reader must understand that the savings and loan act in Ohio refers to mutual savings banks, the building and loan societies being incorporated under a different act. What's the matter with the Corcoran law, though? Wouldn't that give the Toledo concern sufficient latitude? Why not incorporate under that?—National B. and L. Herald.

This is a specimen of the misrepresentation the organ of national building and loan associations gives out. Of course it is unnecessary to say to Toledo people that the facts in the case referred to above were directly the opposite of this statement. It was not a local building and loan association that wanted to go into the banking business, but a bank that sought to go into the building and loan business. As for the Corcoran law, it keeps out wildcat companies, and that's what's the matter with it.

THE CHINESE MISSION.

One of the questions of the hour is, who is United States minister to China? Two men are drawing salary for performing the onerous duties of that office. The situation is a peculiar one. It need not have been peculiar if Mr. Blair of New Hampshire had not been a peculiar man in his shameless greed for salary when he was repudiated for the place and its duties. He had not the courtesy and decency of a good citizen or he would have resigned. If the new law allows such a lap in salaries, it should be revised. Under this law, it is explained that the minister has thirty days after appointment to receive instructions, sixty days to reach Pekin and ninety days in which to return to his country. The minister resident has ninety days for his return after the new minister arrives at Pekin and both incumbents receive salaries. A special appropriation provides for these double salaries in case of every appointment to foreign mission. Mr. Blair's "term of probation" as it is called till the days counted ends the first of next month, and then there will be a vacancy to the Chinese mission unless Mr. Blair shall resign or be kicked out as he deserves, and Mr. Denby reappointed.

After all this double salary business the United States will be left unrepresented at the court of the Flowery Kingdom at the one time in a long term of years when it might seem necessary for a government officer to be at that capital.

A blatant organ unconsciously admits the true lowardness of the whole bungling business when it says "Mr. Blair will probably be appointed to some new place and will resign as Chinese minister."

Under just what obligation the taxpayers of the United States are to see that a lichen-covered old fossil like Mr. Blair, repudiated by his own state, shall be kept under continuous salary, without break or interim, or just why a man who has made such exhibition of his shabbiness should be foisted upon the pay roll of the country in any capacity is something the small man in the large chair at Washington might wisely consider. If there was ever "a time for disappearing" just now the gulf of oblivion yawns for Mr. Blair and others of his ilk.

LOADED FOR REPUBLICAN BEAR.

The McKinley law is loaded. Sadly but frankly the republican leaders in the different states acknowledge it. First it was the forty newspaper men running republican organs in Ohio who recognized the danger of attempting to defend the monstrosity, and resolved that "We, the people of Ohio," will make the silver question the issue. Then the republicans of Massachusetts had no sooner nominated their ticket than they discovered that, though the state was lost to them on the tariff issue last year, the great question this year is something else. So in Iowa and Pennsylvania.

Now the managers of the republican campaign in New York arrive at the same conclusion. Secretary Halford has made a special trip to see Candidate Fassett, and assure him President Harrison isn't sulking over the cutter Grant episode, but heartily wishes him success. A part of the private secretary's mission was also to give the president's "ideas" on the line of campaign, and to express his hope that the tariff issue would be made prominent.

It happens Mr. Fassett and his friends know, however, what probably every man in the country knows unless Benjamin Harrison and William McKinley must be excepted, that the McKinley tariff is loaded, and its game is republican majorities anywhere. Mr. Fassett has ... friends who have told him that the McKinley tariff and its administration have driven them out of the republican ranks into the democratic party. Mr. Fassett will ignore a party issue he cannot defend, and, confident he knows more about New York politics than the man in the White House he has sent Secretary Halford back to say that in his (Fassett's) campaign he (Fassett) shall confine himself strictly to state issues.

From every steamship port of the old world where there is the least hope for sailing, the exiled Jews embark for America, the land of promise. On the least fashionable lines and at the most obscure ports, their chances are better, as they have learned. At way points they congregate, no agent or consul is there to scrutinize or prohibit, and the steamship companies, with no interference in the matter, land them or return them, as they are allowed or obliged to do. The forlorn creatures reach these ports by walking, begging their way, half starved, half clothed, across hostile countries, and the steerage of a vessel that bears them toward the land of the West is luxury to them.

This wholesale expulsion of a people from their native land is one of the most pitiable spectacles of the century, and arrogant, despotic Russia defies the civilized world in its inhuman action. England and Austria notably, of the old world countries, attempt to be generous in their treatment of the exiles, but they already protest against overwhelming numbers. America is the country to which they turn and all Europe is glad to see them vanish in the western sky and waters. And what does it signify to America? From labor circles in New York and other seaboard cities already comes the cry of complaint, of the filthiness and squalor which they breed. They work for a pittance and live on refuse, menacing alike the wage-worker, the small trader, and the health and well-being of communities.

If hordes of Europe's lower strata of population must pour in steady tide upon our shores, then it were wise to take vigorous hold of the question and regulate where we cannot prohibit. On the vast plains of the west is room for a people to work out their own salvation and do the country of their adoption a service as well. The Mormons have made garden spots of stretches of the great Utah desert. Transport these land-hungry exiles thither and let them earn a right to a home among us. The next generation and the next will be American citizens. Our own people are there, in scattered localities, with their irrigation and tree planting, accepting pioneer hardships in anticipation of enjoying the reward of their labors. In the decades to come there will be no waste lands in the United States. Give to these exiles the task of subduing the deserts; it will be paradise compared with what they have left behind them. It is not just that they be allowed to crowd into the already overcrowded cities with their ignorance, filth and untrained ideas of free life in a free country, thus complicating an already serious problem.

M. Ribot's conciliatory speech to a vast audience of Frenchmen at the unveiling of the Feidherbe statue yesterday was one of the results of the recent happy meeting of French and English naval fleets in English waters, and this meeting was due to the action of Queen Victoria, who herself directed the progress of the entertainment and, putting aside the infirmities of age, participated in the festivities, a rare occurrence for many years. And this may be the mission of woman in affairs of state to avert the horrors of war and strengthen the bonds of peace. In this noble work the foremost woman of her age sets the royal example.

Gov. Pattison acted with the calm deliberation and firmness characteristic of him in summoning the state senate to take action upon the charges against Attorney General McCamant and State Treasurer Boyer. This throws the responsibility of the trial upon the republican majority in the senate who must face the people and the people pretty well know the testimony in the case against the two officers. Gov. Pattison simply does his duty in issuing the call, and to criticise his action is to lay one's self open to suspicion of apprehension as to its results.

It adds to the pleasure and pride the Bee takes in its own achievements to find its journalistic neighbors and contemporaries are so generously inclined to give full meed of praise to the Bee's work and its results. We cannot better show our appreciation of the following notice, in this morning's Commercial, than by reproducing it:

The Bee was issued from its new building on St. Clair street last evening and the event marks an epoch in Toledo journalism. The difficulties incidental to a change of quarters of a newspaper were successfully overcome and the edition was out nearly on time. The building is a lasting monument to the enterprise of the proprietors, an ornament to the city, and an evidence of prosperity pleasing to notice and to record. Designed and built expressly for a newspaper establishment it is convenient and the style reflects not only the ability of the architect but the refined taste of the management of the Bee, and the skillfulness of the builders. It is large enough, nice enough and substantial enough to last through the lives of this present generation of citizens even though the city should grow to twice its present size in the meantime. We congratulate our esteemed contemporary on its advancement, enterprise and success, we congratulate the city upon having such a live afternoon newspaper. We can sincerely hope that the new building will be a success and that the Bee will continue on the high tide of prosperity.

If Mr. C. A. Flickinger acted upon his own responsibility when he said the election of McKinley is the sideshow of the republican circus this year, he is greener in politics than some people have imagined. If he acted under orders from the Sherman bosses, the episode early demonstrates the bitter fight between the republican senatorial aspirants. It is evident that the worst throat-cutting ever indulged in by the republicans of Ohio is now in progress. The slaughter will be fearful in November.

The Enquirer is not giving that attention to Gov. Campbell's canvass which an earnest democratic paper should. It not only had no representative at the Marysville meeting but declined to print a good report that was furnished by other parties. Play fair, neighbor.

The nomination of Harry Dowling for sheriff was a master stroke of the democratic party. Popular with everybody and thoroughly competent to discharge the duties of the office, his election is sure to follow. The canvass is now well under way and Dowling will grow stronger every day.

The republicans will find nothing in this campaign to say against John W. Canary, the democratic candidate for senator from Wood county. His record as a citizen, as a soldier, and as a lawyer is clear and unassailable. He will ... take a front rank in the deliberations of the senate. The district will be proud of John W. Canary.

THE BEE DID IT.

Quick Results From a Few Lines in Want Column.

A Young Lady Loses Her Watch at Three O'clock, and at Seven the Lost is Found.

LOST.—A ladies' gold watch with initial letters L. & H. on outside of case, near Steadman monument. L. on front side and H. on back. Chased case, Elgin movement. Suitable reward.

This advertisement appeared in last evening's Bee, and was left at the office about three o'clock.

The loser appeared much disconcerted at the loss of the watch, and had little hope of ever hearing of it again.

At 7 o'clock last evening a young man named William Donovan walked into the Bee counting room with a Bee in one hand and the lost watch in the other.

Mr. Donovan found the little time piece in front of the Steadman monument, and seeing the advertisement in the Bee came directly to the office with it.

This incident not only shows the value of advertising, but the propriety of placing advertisements in a paper where they will be seen. It is doubted if any advertiser ever had quicker returns than did Mr. Howard.

THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER.

What is as Sweet About an Old and Well Loved Song as the Memories That Cluster About It?

The singer before you may be rendering it well or not so well, but memory brings before you those who sang it in after years, and their sweet memory transform a common place, rendering into something inexpressibly beautiful. With what wonderful power an old song touches the heart strings and brings joy and pain!

She took the flower from her bosom, studied it as if reading the future in its petals, and then sang that sweet, old song, The Last Rose of Summer. She sang it with exquisite sweetness, yet one could not follow her voice because of the other voices, long since gone, that were singing in the heart. Were they beautiful singers, too? Some were and some were not, as critics would judge them. Some who sang it for you had very common-place voices, but you recall them more distinctly than you recall Parepa, or Patti. You loved them; that glorified the song and the singer, and they passed out of your life as a lovely day dies.

With what wonderful tenderness and skill the singer executes the song. But you do not see her; your eyes are seeking the faces of those whose voices are singing in your heart. Ah, memory's chains have bound you, and link by link draw you from the present and its surroundings, and compel you to do homage to the past with its sweet pain.

RAIDED A CHINESE DEN.

New York, Sept. 29.—A little girl, perhaps 12 years old, walked out of the basement of No. 104 Park street yesterday afternoon.

When asked by officers what she had been doing in there she said she had been sent to buy some opium. An investigation proved that the basement was a Chinese opium joint and gambling den.

The officers found 15 new pipe bowls, 11 pipes, 8 large pots of opium, 5 large paper boxes of opium, 6 complete "layouts," 2 large loaded revolvers and $81.95 in money. Fifteen Chinamen were arrested.

FATALLY BURNED.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 29.—Mrs. Julia Kessler, wife of a prominent young business man of this city, was fatally burned yesterday. Her clothes caught fire from a gasoline stove. Mr. Kessler, who went to her rescue, is so badly burned that he is crippled for life. Mr. Kessler's mother was also severely burned.

ESCAPED FROM SIBERIA,

Sixteen Nihilists Shake Off the Ball and Chain.

Thirteen of the Party Start for America and Three Remain in London.

Boston, Sept. 29.—There are three young Russian nihilists living on Cooper street at the north end. They were members of a party of 16 exiles who escaped from the mines of Siberia a few weeks ago and, after lonely wanderings amid the forests of Siberia and plains of Warsaw, reached England. They arrived here last week on the steamship Samaria. Thirteen of the 16 went to New York, where friends had employment in prospect for them.

The names of the three who remained here are Mendel Pinsk, Jacob Pinsk and Himan Pinsk. They are cousins, well educated and natives of Aradne, near Warsaw. One night six months ago they were captured, with 13 other young men, at a secret midnight meeting of nihilist students, held in their native town. Several of the students and two of the police were killed. The 16 arrested were tried for the murder of the policemen and sentenced to life imprisonment of hard labor in the mines of Siberia.

After working in the mines at Yarkutsk for a few months the 16 were divided into two gangs. They met accidentally one day in a tunnel. A number of the guards were at dinner. With the aid of four other prisoners, notwithstanding that each prisoner had a heavy ball and chair attached to his ankle, they overcame the guards present, took away their keys to the manacles and their arms and escaped.

Some of the escaped prisoners got rid of their ball-and-chain attachments, while others succeeded only in detaching the heavy ball. In order to get away at once these were obliged to wrap their chains with their clothing and with rags as best they could in order to attract the least attention.

The 16 friends agreed to meet at a small town on the frontier, whence they would be reasonably sure of a chance to escape to America. Then they started off. Some hid again in the mines as the least likely place in which the guards would look for them, while others hid in the woods. Journeying slowly towards their destination and living on berries, nuts and what small fowl they could catch or kill, one party met an official who, noticing the suspicious appearance of their ankles, attempted to arrest them. They killed him on the spot and se zing his arms hurried on.

The three young men now in Boston ran into the government farm connected with the mines, upon their escape, and regaled themselves on the milk of a cow they found there. They then killed the animal and taking portions of its quarters for food on their long journey, started for the woods, each mounted a horse belonging to the government. They were seen by the guards, who gave hot chase.

The escaped men had a good start, and after attaching prickly burrs to the horses' tails, in order to make them go faster, they turned them out and hid in the woods. The horses galloping madly on for many miles leading the guards a hopeless chase.

Jacob Pinsk acted as leader of the trio on their perilous journey. Being a remarkable mimic, he was able to imitate the cries of birds so perfectly as to entice them from their haunts near enough so they might be killed. Their flesh was eaten raw, as had been the meat of the cow killed at the mines. A week after the escape they arrived at a farm-house, where they were furnished with meat, bread and matches. The latter enabled them for the rest of the journey to have cooked food.

One of the sixteen refugees, named Shinsky, escaped alone. While going through the woods he met a squad of newly arrived prisoners under escort. Fortunately he had torn off the yellow patch on the back of his coat, which is the only badge by which the Russian prisoners can be identified. When passed by the officer in charge of the escort where he was bound he replied that he had been sent to a certain town to buy corn. The officer took him back to the village which Shinsky had just left, and walking into a public place, fortunately without exposing his prisoner, asked if any one there had sent a man to such a town for corn. "Yes, I did," was the response of a villager. Whereupon the officer released his prisoner, who made ha te to get out of the village.

Berile Minsk, another of the prisoners, who is now in New York, says that in journeying through the woods he came to a cornfield. After slaying a stock of corn he started through the woods again, where he encountered a strange red animal about as large as a good-sized dog.

The animal was very savage and attacked Minsk. The latter climbed a tree and spent several weary hours besieged by the strange beast. Finally a branch broke and Minsk fell to the ground. This disconcerted the animal for a moment. Before he could recover from his surprise Minsk seized the limb of a tree and belabored his besieged until he was dead.

In a little town near Warsaw, known as a hotbed of Nihilism, the 16 refugees were reunited about three weeks ago. Through the aid of a society they were shipped to England, and thence to Boston.

The four strangers who escaped with the party have not been heard of by them.

EXCITEMENT AT MASS.

A McGlynnite Who Was Bound to be Heard.

He Took an Unfavorable Time and Was Hustled Out of the Church in Short Order.

New York, Sept. 29.—While Father Dewey was celebrating mass in St. Patrick's cathedral Sunday morning a young man entered the church, and walking up the main aisle startled the congregation by waving his arms wildly and shouting incoherently.

When he caught sight of Archbishop Corrigan, who was seated inside the altar, he exclaimed:

"You are Pontius Pilate! That you are! I'm a follower of Dr. McGlynn; that's what I am."

He continued his wild gesticulations and turning to the worshippers nearest to him, shouted:

"I am one of the Lord's annointed. You are not in it with me."

Then he used very profane language, but the service proceeded and the strong voices of the trained choir drowned the voice of the intruder.

Several attendants hurried up the aisle to eject the intruder. As they did so the chanting of the choir ceased.

"Three cheers for Dr. McGlynn and damnation to his enemies," shouted the man, with more profanity and further insults to the officiating priests.

There was considerable confusion for a few minutes, then he was hustled out of the church.

"Three cheers for Dr. McGlynn," he shouted.

On reaching the sidewalk Officer Quinlan, at the request of the cathedral officials, released his prisoner and told him to move on.

"I'm a McGlynnite," he shouted, "and I don't care who knows it."

RUNNING THEM DOWN

Garcia's Band of Robbers Getting in Close Quarters.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 29.—Nicholas Hernandez, one of Garcia's lieutenants, was captured Sunday night by a United States marshal and is in the Cameron county jail.

A report reaches here that Garcia's forces were routed near Camargo, Mexico, and that his followers are making for this side.

It is also said that Garcia is already on the Texas border at a place called Realitos.

A QUAINT OLD TOWN.

A Mexican Fourth of July as Witnessed By a Toledo Boy.

Special Correspondence Toledo Bee.

Monterey is a curiously constructed old town; the streets are very narrow, are well paved and are built up flush to the sidewalk. Everything is of stone; no wooden building in sight anywhere. To the exterior view they all look like a prison or a fort, as they are one-story in height with the doors made of old planks something less than a foot thick, banded together with iron and the hinges set in the stone work. The windows are barred with heavy iron on the outside, like a prison, and have heavy wooden shutters on the inside. Shops, stores and residences all have the same appearance when the doors are closed. But late in the evening you walk along past these houses, through the windows you get glimpses of some of the most magnificent interiors imaginable. The courts are back of the houses, enclosed by a high stone wall, ten feet or more. In these courts are all kinds of tropical plants—oranges, lemons, bananas, etc. It is a beautiful sight.

The city is situated on a level prairie, nearly surrounded by mountains that rise several thousand feet above the level of the streets, the peaks of the loftiest peering up into the clouds. Saddle mountain, the highest of them all, its two peaks giving it the look and shape of an enormous saddle. This circle of mountains make the situation of the city very picturesque, indeed.

We had the good fortune to reach the city before their great holidays set in—their "4th of July," which is the 15th of September, the birthday of the republic, and the 16th was the governor's natal day. The two days' festivities consisted of music by the military bands, a sham battle in which were about three thousand troops, bull fights, fandangoes, processions and fireworks. The battle took place on a level plain at the foot of a very high hill just back of the town.

Here stands the Bishop's palace, where old Zack Taylor planted his cannon and made the city of Monterey surrender to the American troops. The hill was covered with thousands of people in their picturesque costumes, watching the progress of the battle, which was quite exciting.

The majority of the government troops are convicts, who receive as wages a bit (12 1-2 cents) a day. They are a scrubby looking set.

At night the plazas are crowded with ladies and gentlemen who are out to listen to the beautiful strains of music furnished by the military bands, the gentlemen walking one way and the ladies the other. Only high caste Spaniards and Americans are allowed to walk on the Plaza de Municipale.

Talk about magnificent looking women! they are here by the hundreds. A susceptible fellow wilts if one looks at him, their eyes are so langmorously beautiful. But they grow old early and soon lose their beauty.

There are hundreds of Americans in Monterey, and they seem to be very friendly.

The Mexicans talk about "another rebellion" as if it were likely to happen any day.

A BAR TO NAVIGATION.

The Council Ought to Remove Goose Point.

Vessels Refuse to Come Into This Harbor—Estimated Cost—Low Water.

Another summer has almost passed away, another season of navigation is almost ended, and Goose Point still remains a bar to navigation, and the dread of mariners and ship owners whose vessels enter this harbor.

Three years ago the entrance to Swan creek was accessible to vessels drawing 13 feet of water, but at this time no vessel drawing more than 10 feet can enter the creek. This arises from two causes, viz.: The gradual falling in of earth, the result of washing, and, secondly, the low water. There is not as much water in this harbor this year by 18 inches as there has been heretofore. It appears to be constantly receding.

The filling in of earth from Swan creek appears to extend down the Maumee as far as Adams street, and many ship owners, among which may be mentioned the Ward line of steamers, refuse to enter this port and will not until this obstacle is removed.

The point thus clearly shown to be a hindrance to our commercial advantage ought to be removed.

The city council has long been importuned to take some action in this direction, but so far has signally failed to do anything which promises to bring about the desired results.

Some time ago the council advertised for bids for the purpose of ... ing this dredging. The bids were opened September 10, but were referred to the committee, where the matter will likely remain indefinitely.

Councilmen urge in support of the inactivity, that there is no money in the harbor and commerce fund to do the work.

It has been estimated that the cost of dredging a channel from the mouth of Swan creek, or from Monroe to Adams street, will not be over $5,000. This money will make a channel for this distance 125 feet wide and 17 feet deep. There is 17 feet of water from here to Lake Erie, which the government has provided at the cost of millions of dollars.

It now seems that the city ought to make the river harbor navigable to vessels which draw at least 13 feet of water.

A prominent vessel owner of this city threatens that unless the council does something he will go to Washington this winter and secure the necessary appropriation of $5,000 to perform the work which the city ought to do.

There is time yet this fall, and if the harbor and commerce fund does not have that much money on hand money ought to be substituted from some other fund.

BACK FROM LABRADOR.

A Description of the Wonderful Grand Falls.

As Great as Niagara, the Roar of the Rushing Water Can be Heard Twenty-Five Miles.

St. Johns, N. B., Sept. 29.—Mr. Bryant, of Philadelphia, and Prof. Kenaston, of Washington, have arrived here from an exploration of Grand Falls, Labrador, in which they have been completely successful.

Mr. Bryant gives a glowing account of the magnificence of the falls. A half mile above the falls the river is 400 yards wide. Three rapids, similar to those at Niagara, begin here. The banks narrow at the falls to a width of 150 to 200 feet. The last rapid is 188 feet in length. The water here rises into great cones, then plunges down from a granite ledge into a great basin.

The height of the falls was accurately measured. It is 316 feet. The banks widen below the basin. On the southern side of the river, below the fall, reddish cliffs rise 800 feet. Mist rises in an immense column over the falls, showing rainbows. The deafening roar is heard 25 miles off. Mr. Bryant took aneroid readings and photographed the falls from various points. The party collected 200 specimens of plants and made valuable scientific records. Mr. Bryant made meteorological observations all though the trip. Prof. Kenaston made a compass survey of the river all the way down, sketching its topography.

HE CUT OFF HER HEAD.

Herrmann's Wonderful Performance at Wheeler's.

He Mystifies Toledoans—Custer at the People's—Bert St. John Going on the Stage Again.

Toledoans have had very few opportunities to witness the performances of the wonderful Herrmann, as he has not been here for a good many years. However, his fame must have preceded him, for a large and fashionable audience gathered at Wheeler's last evening. To say that Herrmann supplied them would be making a very slim statement; he had them off their seats most of the time. There is no doubt about it he is the greatest conjurer of the present time. The first half hour of the evening was spent with slight-of-hand. One of his tricks was to borrow a hat and immediately take from it two live rabbits. He rolled them together into one and told a gentleman in the audience that the animal was inside of him, and sure enough it was, for he stepped down in the audience and pulled it out of the gentleman's vest. He took money, birds, eggs, bi-hued balls and flowers out of thin air apparently and did countless other tricks.

One of the best tricks was the decapitation. A lady appears on the stage and the Devil requests Herrmann to do a little magic—"cut the lady's head off." The lady sits down and the magician, taking a sword, severs the head from the shoulders and carries it about six feet to a pedestal, on top of which he places it. The body reaches for the head, and the eyes watched the body. Finally Herrmann picks up the head, carries it back to the body, places it in position, whereupon the lady arises, thanks him and walks off the stage. He also did the vanishing lady and many other wonderful tricks. Herrmann appears again this evening, and should be seen to be appreciated.

Bert St. John.

Bert St. John of this city, who is a very clever comedian and one of the best known young men in town, left to-day to join George W. Monroe's Aunt Bridget company. He is to take one of the leading parts in the piece, and with his peculiar talents he is bound to make a hit. His friends wish him success.

At the People's.

A fair-sized audience gathered to see W. J. Fleming's Custer at the People's last evening. As to the play itself, there is nothing in it. It opens on a quiet village scene in the east and closes on a rough and tumble Indian fight in the wild and wooly west. It is a pre entation of the average small boy's ambition, to leave a peaceful home midst tears and sorrow to go out west and die in a hail to hand contest with a starwart brave on the bleak and barren plain. The cast is a very good one and would make a creditable appearance were there an opportunity to about them elves other than chasing each other up and down the stage and howling like wolves.

To-morrow Evening.

George W. Monroe appears at Wheeler's to-morrow evening in his new comedy "Trilger's Baby," that recently made such a hit in New York and the east. He will bring a large company of clever comedians with him, and the performance will be one of the comedy events of the season.

Next Week.

A. J. Westfall, agent for the comedy novelty, "Ole Olsen," is in the city arranging for the presentation of that piece at the People's next week. The leading part is assumed by Ben Hendricks, who will give Toledoans their next lesson in Swedish dialect, which is said to be very funny.

EXHIBITION IN GENOA.

The Italian-American Fair To Be Boomed.

Rome, Sept. 29.—The executive committee of the Italian-American exhibition at Genoa, in honor of the discovery of America by Columbus, have finally arranged for the erection of the buildings, which will cost 300,000 lire.

It is the design of the committee that the exhibition shall consist of samples of the agricultural and industrial products of Italy and America, with the object of showing the kinds of goods that can be most advantageously imported and exported.

It is expected thus to give a new impetus to trans-Atlantic commerce. This would be a good opportunity for American merchants to introduce their goods into a new market. Genoa is the largest distributing point in Italy for foreign merchandise, and the people of Italy are largely predisposed in favor of American products.

The municipality of Genoa and the committee are in full accord, and the former will contribute liberally toward the expenses. Work upon the buildings will be commenced Oct. 1, and it is expected that they will be completed by April 1, 1892. They will occupy a space of about 100,000 square metres.

THE FROST FORECASTS.

Prof. Foster Has a Word of Explanation to Make.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 29.—I made a small mistake as to the cool weather and frosts about the 17th or 18th of September, and of small error is being magnified. On August 8th I said: "There is some danger of corn crops being cut short by early frosts in the northern belt."

There is but one corn belt and the prediction fairly construed applies only to its northern edges in South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin, and localities of like northern latitudes.

Near the middle of August a frost occurred damaging corn in these sections, but much will not be known till the corn is gathered.

August 22 I said: "I expect a killing frost in the northern edges of the corn belt about the 17th or 18th with a probability that frost will do some damage on 13th or 14th." That prediction cannot be made to apply to any section south of the state mentioned above. Light frosts occurred on 14th but none on 17th or 18th. Confine the prediction to the latitudes for which it was made and it is not a serious error and I injured no one.

W. T. FOSTER.

THE MEXICAN TREATY.

It is Too One-sided to Meet Favor With the People.

City of Mexico, Sept. 29.—The scope of the negotiations intrusted to J. E. J. Limantour, as Mexican commissioner, to treat with United States Minister Ryan on reciprocity, is strictly limited to the provision of the American tariff law in its third section.

The question to be discussed is simply what compensation can Mexico give to the United States for the free admission of her sugar, hides and coffee.

The question of the admission of lead ores free of duty is therefore shut out. There is no idea of negotiating a full and complete reciprocity treaty, at least at the present moment.

ESCAPED FROM JAIL.

Train Robbers Not Fascinated With the Inside of the Jail.

Visalia, Cal., Sept. 29.—Gratton Dalton, convicted of the Alila train robbery, John Boss, waiting trial for horse stealing, and W. B. Smith for robbing a car at Tulare, escaped from the county jail last night. They had secured keys to unlock their cells after which the doors were again locked and the men were not missed until this morning. A horse and buggy which was hitched to a post in the court house plaza is also missing and the men are supposed to have gone off with the rig.

Twenty-five deputies are in pursuit. Wm. Dalton, another of the train robbers, is safely guarded in the jail.

CASE WILL BE APPEALED.

Columbus, O., Sept. 29. — Attorney Harry Jacobs of Youngstown was here to-day and held a conference with Wm. Fitzgerald, his client, who is to hang next month unless the execution is delayed by legal proceedings. It is the intention of Mr. Jacobs' to appeal Fitzgerald's case to the supreme court on a petition in error.

It is estimated that the western railroads have earned $25,000 the past year from the trains containing Mormon missionaries and their goods. Each missionary is brought over from Europe every year to keep the Mormon colonies thriving. They are in charge always of an elder, who is sent by the Mormons of Utah to work in Europe.

In California, by an act passed in the session train wrecking and train robbery are capital offenses, punishable with death or imprisonment for life at the option of the jury trying the case. The crimes are capital offenses even if no murder is done, or even if the attempt is unsuccessful. Menco D'Esposito, a well known Italian of this city, in looking up his list of valuable securities, some time ago, discovered a lot of Turkish bonds which he had purchased in Naples some years ago. By a curious coincidence all the bonds of that series had been sold in Italy, and the recent war could in eastern Europe has made Turkey so anxious to keep on good terms with Italy that one has begun to redeem the bonds. D'Esposito hears the good news, and yesterday stepped the seven liras to Genoa for redemption. What he bought at a large discount years ago now appears likely to realize him a snug sum.—Philadelphia Record.

The Australians are said to be the greatest tea-drinkers in the world, and they are closely followed by the English. In France, and on the continent generally, with the exception of Russia, coffee is more largely consumed than tea. Belgium and Holland alone surpass the United States as coffee-drinkers. The average consumption in this country per head the past year was 8¾ pounds. During the last 10 years the annual consumption of coffee per head has increased two or three ounces. This is due in part to the fact that the people are better off and can afford to spend more on luxuries. But the average quantity of tea drank has not increased in the last decade. So it is evident that the United States is becoming more and more addicted to the Arabian and Brazilian berry.

"It is a singular thing," says a physician, "that a man does not hear his own voice exclusively through his ears. The prevalence of throat deafness is a proof to the layman of the connection between the ears and throat, and this inability to hear one's self speak just as others hear us is another instance. In regard to singing, the varying ability to hear one's self with the ears plugged up with cotton makes itself evident, for while one member of a chorus will only hear the blended harmony, or discord, another will hear little beyond his or her own voice, and make occasional bad breaks in consequence. I know a man who used to sing a very fair baritone but whose voice is now only adapted to the weakest falsetto. Yet he doesn't realize the change, and I believe he honestly thinks he sings as well as ever. This apparent impossibility may be a dispensation of Providence to prevent men with exceptionally ugly voices being driven to suicide."

BUILDING A NEW TOWN.

How Matters are Pushed in Dakota.

A Bank Opens for Business in Three Days and Goods for Stores Also on Hand at That Time.

I was introduced to a young man of about 30 years of age the other day at Minneapolis by Mr. Chamberlain, cashier of the Security bank. In a few moments of conversation I extracted the following facts from him which may be of interest to our slow-going, conservative men of the older states.

Let me give it to you in his own language: "Last Sunday morning I hitched up and drove 17 miles southeast of my town, Valley City, N. D. After driving through miles and miles of waving wheat, which will average 30 bushels to the acre, I came to my destination, a small siding called Fingel, on a new extension of the "Soo" just completed to my town and over which trains are to commence running Monday morning.

"After thinking the matter over carefully, I decided that a town should be built at this point without delay. So firmly was I convinced of the necessity of this enterprise, I decided that I would go to work at once, there being no time to lose, as there were thousands upon thousands of bushels of wheat waiting an outlet. Before leaving I made an arrangement with the Swede farmer who owned the adjacent land to the siding to plat and lay out a town. Hurrying back home I communicated by wire with the officials of the railroad, and secured their promise to open a station with depot, freight buildings and telegraph office.

"I then wired some Minneapolis parties and got their promise for an elevator. I took the night train Monday for St. Paul and Minneapolis, at once made contracts for three stores, a bank, and engaged and shipped the necessary lumber and materials for the elevator, stores and 50 houses, had all shipped by Wednesday night, including tents and 40 carpenters, and this morning (Thursday), I have received a message saying everything is on the ground and men at work.

"Have just come from Altman & Co., and find they have the goods all ready to ship to-day noon for the stores. The bank will be running day after to-morrow under canvass, and before winter sets in Fingel will have over 500 inhabitants. Glad to have met you; if you should get up our way come and see me. You will have to excuse me now, as I have about a dozen parties I want to see and expect to take the afternoon train home."

This man, Mr. Peake informs me, that the wheat crop throughout the Dakotas is phenomenal beyond anything ever heard of, and estimates the average at 25 or 30 bushels to the acre; says hundreds of farmers will get enough for this year's crop to pay for their farms. He figures like this: Good wheat land up there is selling for $8 and $10 per acre, cost $5 per acre to raise wheat, and at 80 cents per bushel the paying price at the railroad stations, an acre will produce $24—deducting $6—the cost of production, leaving $18, which of course pays for land and leaves a surplus of $8 or $10 per acre. This sounds like a "Sinbad" story, but I think it is pretty close to the exact facts. Who says Uncle Sam is not a big man?

PREPARING FOR WINTER.

Applications for City Gas Pouring In.

The City Saves Money by Constructing Its Own Lines—The Board of Gas Trustees Hold a Brief Session.

Assistant Secretary Manton wrote out 95 contracts for city gas yesterday, and at the meeting of the gas trustees last evening arrangements were made to construct several additional miles of line.

Manager Heston reported the following: To the Honorable, the Board of Natural Gas Trustees of the City of Toledo, O.:

Gentlemen: The following final estimates reported, for lines laid by this department, for the distribution of natural gas, namely:

Scottwood avenue, from Bancroft to Monroe street; 1,736 feet of 4-inch pipe, $561.69. Rate for furnishing and laying above pipe, with necessary fittings, 33 cents per lineal foot.

Monroe street, at the head of Scottwood avenue, 497.5 feet of 4-inch pipe, $179.96. Rate for furnishing and laying above pipe, with necessary fittings, 33 cents per lineal foot.

Jerome street, from Bancroft to Page street, 803.6 feet of 4-inch pipe, $302.19. Rate for furnishing and laying above pipe, with necessary fittings, 37 1-2 cents per lineal foot.

Kent street, from Bancroft street to Page street, 845 feet of 4-inch pipe, $322.80. Rate for furnishing and laying above pipe, with necessary fittings, 38 1-2 cents per lineal foot.

All in accordance with the final estimates of the superintendent for the above work, dated September 24, 1891, and on file.

Yours, respectfully,

WM. P. HESTON, Manager.

The contract price under the Parks Foster & Co. bid is 64 cents for 4-inch so that it will be readily seen how much the board saves in constructing lines itself.

Mr. Frank H. Tanner appeared before the board relative to gas for the Manhattan flour mills. He said coal at present cost about $150 a month, and the output of the mills was about 140,000 barrels a day. His company was prepared to advance the money for the construction of the line to the mills. The matter was referred.

Residents appeared and petitioned for gas in the following streets:

Willow avenue, from Warren to Earl streets.

Raymer, from Navarre to Starr avenues

Hicks, from Wells to Ewing.

Hicks, from Collingwood avenue to Grosvenor street.

South Erie, from Canal avenue to Stanton street.

Sherman, from Walnut to Locust.

Dorr, from Ewing to Waite avenue.

These applications were all referred.

The committee on city plant recommended laying of lines on the following streets:

Fourteenth, Washington to Monroe.

Alley, from Dove Lane to Michigan.

Adams street, south side Tenth, 150 feet west.

Division street, Nebraska avenue to Vance.

Dove lane, Walnut to Locust.

Hicks street, from Wells to Ewing.

State, from Union to Canton avenue.

Clark, from Germania 300 feet south.

Erie, from Harrison to the canal.

Erie, from Harrison to Logan.

Irving, from Ashland avenue 200 feet east.

Colburn, Broadway to Maumee avenue.

Balfe, Broadway to Wabash railroad.

Boyd, Stebbins to Broadway.

The report was adopted, and the lines ordered laid, when one-half cost is paid.

Lines were ordered laid on the following streets when amount subscribed is paid:

Thirteenth, Oak 75 feet north of Adams.

Warren, Woodruff avenue 200 feet north.

Fitch, Bancroft to Woodruff avenue.

Woodruff, Horton 178 feet east.

Floyd, Fulton to Putnam.

Irving, Horton to Ashland avenue.

Kerlin Bros. sent in a proposition to build a 6-inch line on the East Side at the rate paid Parks Foster & Co. The committee on city plant recommended that a contract be entered into per proposition, and it was so ordered.

The contract with Parks Foster & Co. for the construction of a line in East Toledo was ratified.

The manager was authorized to purchase Northwestern meters when as cheap as others.

The superintendent was instructed to secure right of way for connecting wells with the main line in the field.

The secretary reported the receipt of $3,200 during the past two days.

The Lafayette Construction Co. presented a communication, which is practically a transfer of its contract to Parks Foster & Co. It was placed on file.

It was decided to refund several consumers the cost of transferring from the Northwestern to the city mains.

THE COUNCILMEN

Hold a Short Session and Rush Business.

Memorial Hall Trustees Requested to Open It for Conventions—Miscellaneous Mention.

The board of councilmen held a rather slow and uninteresting session last evening and transacted business of great importance. On account of the excursion to Detroit last Thursday, there was no business reported from committees. All members were present except Mr. Neuendorf.

Mr. Albrecht presented a resolution, which was adopted, thanking the city officials of Detroit for their entertainment of the Toledo officials and extending to them the hospitality of the city.

Mr. Bay introduced a resolution directing the street commissioner to open the drain in Ravine alley at Sumner street. This was adopted.

Mr. Swan presented a resolution to grade Walnut street from Yates street to Delaware avenue. Referred to the committee on streets.

Mr. Walker introduced a petition which was referred to the committee, asking for a sewer in the alley between Dorr and Hicks street.

Mr. Walker also introduced a resolution for a new sidewalk on west side of Hoag street. Referred.

A communication was read from the board of park commissioners stating that upon his death Judge W. A. Collins had bequeathed to the city a tract of 35 acres of land on the East Side for park purposes, on condition that the city signify an acceptance of it within one year and within three years acquire the same amount of property adjoining. The communication requested the council to signify their acceptance of the gift, which was done.

A communication was read from Mrs. Mary P. Cummings, who owns 33 feet of the end of Fifteenth street adjoining Monroe street. It stated that the property was worth $4,000, but to avoid condemnation proceedings she would turn it over to the city if they would pay the taxes and assessments which the property has cost her, amounting to $1,472.48. Referred to the street committee.

A resolution from Mr. Caldwell for three artesian wells on the East Side was adopted.

Mr. Taylor presented a resolution for the change of a curb and crosswalks at the corner of Washington, Seventeenth and Dorr streets. This was adopted.

A petition from property owners for an electric light at the corner of Washington and Ewing streets was referred to the committee.

A resolution from Mr. Taylor was adopted to repair the sidewalk at the Washington street school.

Mr. Caldwell introduced a resolution requesting the trustees of Memorial hall to throw that building open for county and district conventions. After a short speech by Mr. Caldwell, the resolution was adopted.

Business from the board of aldermen was taken up, and all passed except to abate an assessment on lot 887 Port Lawrence, which was referred back to the committee.

Mr. Caldwell introduced a resolution instructing the harbormaster to build a wooden approach to the Lafayette street bridge at a cost not to exceed $500.

Mr. Pheatt objected at first, thinking that this would interfere with the erection, but when assured that it would not, withdrew his objection, and the resolution was adopted.

Mr. Gill presented a resolution for an artesian well at the corner of Bridge and Nevada streets. Referred to committee.

Mr. Coleman objected to the resolution to pay 80 per cent. on the work of the Bridge street grading as the work proceeds. He considered it unfair to the other contractors.

The resolution passed, however, Messrs. Coleman, Pheatt and Morganthaler voting against it.

A HOUSE FOUNDED UPON A ROCK.

A thorough knowledge of the structure and various functions of the human organism is the only foundation upon which an intelligence can be built capable of directing its powers, mitigating its afflictions and sustaining its life. The fact that Drs. France & Ottman, in the beginning, spared neither time nor money in building such a foundation, explains the possibility of the magnificent superstructure it sustains. One enabling them to read the subtle language of disease with unerring accuracy, and one that puts at variance nature's recognized law of "the survival of the fittest." The transition of thousands of weak, helpless, distorted, suffering human beings who were formerly dependent burdens without hope, to health and normal life, bears testimony to this fact more eloquently than words. The doctors' rooms are crowded more and more at each succeeding visit.—Ohio State Journal.

Drs. France and Ottman, formerly of New York, now of the France Medical and Surgical Institute, Columbus, Ohio, by request of many friends and patients, have decided to visit Toledo, Wednesday, September 30. Consultation and Examination Free and Strictly Confidential in the Private Parlor of the Burnett House from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m., 1 day only.

THE DUKE MAY RESIGN.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Regular Bi-Weekly Meeting Last Night.

The Cry Is for More Room for Pupils—Salaries Ordered Paid—The Hot Weather Discussed.

All of the members were present at the regular bi-monthly meeting of the board of education last night.

Superintendent Compton occupied the clerk's chair for the first time in several weeks.

The first business taken up was a resolution from the Toledo Electric Street Railway company, presented for approval:

Resolved, By the board of education of Toledo, that they give their consent to the above railway company, to change their line from a single to a double track on Lawrence avenue, between Bancroft and Bartlett streets, and the clerk of said board is authorized to send to the said railway company a certified copy of this resolution.

As the opinion of the city solicitor on the resolution was wanted, it was referred to the building committee for two weeks.

Superintendent Compton made a statement as to the crowded condition of some of the schools, especially those at the Warren, Jefferson, Erie and Sherman buildings. A great many of the rooms are over-crowded. Pupils as well as teachers suffer great inconvenience. Three teachers were reported as having been overcome by the heat this week.

The question was referred to the proper committee for adjustment.

Mr. Compton also spoke of the need of a new building near Bancroft street and Franklin avenue; also of the need of smaller seats in the South street building.

The matter of supplying pencil sharpeners in some of the schools was referred to the supply committee.

Committee on supplies reported bills amounting to $1,083.75, which were ordered paid.

A schedule of bills, amounting to $7,491.21, from the building committee, was also ordered paid, as was also one from the finance committee.

The teachers' pay roll of $12,555.04 and the janitors' of $532 were also ordered paid.

The sum of $20,280 was ordered drawn to pay bonds and interest.

Surveyor Geo. H. Boudette reported that the board was occupying too much ground at the Lawrence avenue and Monroe street school.

It was ordered that they purchase 11 feet from Mr. Thomas Goulden, whose property they are on, for $330 per foot.

Dr. Beckwith reported the necessity of a new well at the Ironville school. Referred to building committee.

Mr. Zirwas, owing to the excessive heat, moved that the schools commence a half hour earlier and dismiss earlier in the day.

This brought forth some discussion as to the one-session-a-day plan, and it was finally left to the superintendent to act as he thought best.

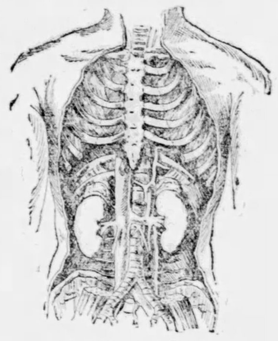
Before the board adjourned, it was unanimously voted on to allow a vacation of one week to Superintendent of Buildings Conrad and Truant Officer Disher.

OUR KIDNEYS.

All Ought to Know These Facts.

Section of Kidney.

Our kidneys act like the drains under cities, to collect and carry away waste or poisonous materials from the body. The nerves which control them often become weakened, irritated, diseased. Then the function is imperfectly performed, uric acid and other poisonous substances are retained, causing pain and weakness in back, high colored excretion with sediment, constant desire to void, headache, coated tongue, bad tastes, thirst, biliousness, constipation, malaria, cold feet, poor circulation, extreme nervousness and weak and tired feelings. These conditions are especially dangerous and must be cured now or alarming kidney and liver diseases will surely follow. Take Dr. Greene's Nervura, which not only perfectly regulates the kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels but gives strength and vitality to blood and nerves. This pure, vegetable, harmless remedy is sold by druggists, $1.00.



The Kidneys in Position.

"I have had considerable trouble for the last six years with my kidneys. At time I could do no work. I used Dr. Greene's Nervura. To my surprise it gave me great relief. I have used two bottles and I am now at work the same as ever. HENRY DROWN,

242 Chandler St., Worcester, Mass."

N. B. Dr. Greene, the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th Street, New York, can be consulted free, personally, or by letter. Call or write him about your case, or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

THE MARCH OF CHRIST,

Dr. Talmage's Sermon in Brooklyn Sunday.

His Progress Through the Centuries—The Name of Jesus More Honored To-day Than Ever Before.

Brooklyn, Sept. 28.—Sunday was sacrament day at the Brooklyn tabernacle. The services, as usual on these occasions, were very solemn and impressive. Dr. Talmage's discourse was on "The March of Christ Through the Centuries," and his text Revelations xix. 12, "On his head were many crowns."

May your ears be alert and your thoughts concentrated, and all the powers of your soul aroused, while I speak to you of "the march of Christ through the centuries." "You say, "give us then a good start, in rooms of vermilion and on floor of mosaic and amid corridors of porphyry and under canopies died in all the splendors of the setting sun." You can have no such starting place. At the time our chieftain was born there were castles on the beach of Galilee, and palaces at Jerusalem, and imperial bath rooms at Jericho, and obelisks at Cairo, and the Pantheon at Rome with its Corinthian portico and its 16 granite columns; and the Parthenon at Athens, with its glistening corset of temples; and there were mountains of fine architecture in many parts of the world. But none of them were to be the starting place of the Chieftain I celebrate.

A cow's stall, a winter month, an atmosphere in which the moan of camels and the baaing of sheep and the barking of dogs and the rough banter of hostelries. He takes his first journey before he could walk. Armed desperadoes with hands of blood were ready to snatch him down into butchery. Rev. Wm. H. Thompson, the veteran and beloved missionary whom I saw this last month in Denver, in his 86th year, has described in his volume entitled "The Land and the Book," Bethlehem as he saw it. Winter he (or he) last I walked up and down the gray hills of Judea limestone on which the village nestles. The fact that King David had been born there had not during ages elevated the village into any special attention. The other fact that it was the birthplace of our Chieftain did not keep the place in after years from special disbonor, for Hadrian built there the grove of Adonis and for 180 years the religion the e observed was the most abhorrent debauchery the world has ever seen. Our chieftain was considered dangerous from the start. The world had put suspicious eyes upon him, because at the time of his birth the astrologers had seen stellar commotions, a world out of its place and shooting down toward a caravansary. Star-divination was a science. As late as the eighteenth century it had its votaries. At the court of Catharine de Medici, honored, Kepler, one of the wisest philosophers that the world ever saw, declared it was a true science. As late as the reign of Charles II, Lilly, an astrologer, was called before the house of commons in England to give his opinion as to future events. For ages the bright appearance of Mars meant war; of Jupiter, meant power; of the Pleiades, meant storm at sea. And history moves in circles, I do not know but that after a while it may be found that as the moon lifts the tides of the sea and the sun affects the growth or blasting of crops, other worlds besides those two worlds may have something to do with the destiny of individuals and nations in this world.

I do not wonder that the commotions in the heavens excited the wise men on the night our Chieftain was born. As he came from another world, and after thirty-three years was again to exchange worlds, it does not seem strange to me that astronomy should have felt the effect of his coming. And instead of being unbelieving about the one star that stopped, I wonder that all the worlds in the heavens did not, that Christmas night, make some special demonstration. Why should they leave to one world or meteor the bearing of the news of the humanization of Christ? Where was Mars that night that it did not indicate the mighty wars that were to come between righteousness and iniquity? Where was Jupiter that night that it did not celebrate omnipotence incarnated? Where were the Pleiades that night, that they did not announce the storms of persecution that would assail our Chieftain?

In watching this march of Christ through the centuries, we must not walk before him or beside him, for that would not be reverential or worshipful. So we walk behind him. We follow him while not yet in his teens, up a Jerusalem temple, to a building 600 feet long and 600 feet wide, and under the hovering splendor of gateways, and by a pillar crowned with capital chiseled in the shape of flowers and leaves, and along by walls of bevelled masonry and near a marble screen with a group of white haired philosophers and theologians gather around him, and then the boy bewilders, confounds, and overwhelms these scholarly septuagenarians with questions they cannot answer, and under his quick whys and whys, and hows and whens, they pull their white beards with embarrassment, and rub their wrinkled foreheads in confusion, and putting their staff hard down on the marble floor as they arise to go, they must feel like eluding the boldness that allows 12 years to ask 70 years of age such puzzlers.

Out of this building we follow him into the Quarantania the mountain of temptation, its site to this day black with robbers' dens. Look! Up the side of this mountain, come all the forces of perdition to effect our Chieftain's capture. But although weakened by 40 days and 40 nights of abstinence, he hurls all Pandemonium down the rocks, suggestive of how he can hurl into helplessness all our temptations. And now we climb right after him, up the tough sides of the "Mount of Beatitudes," and on the highest pulpit of rocks, the valley of Hattin before him, the lake of Galilee to the right of him, the Mediterranean sea to the left of him, he so preaches a sermon that yet will transform the world with its applied sentiment. Now we follow our Chieftain on Lake Galilee. We must keep to the beach, for our feet are not shod with the supernatural, and we remember what poor work Peter made of it when he tried to walk the water. Christ our leader is on the top of the tossing waves, and it is about half-past three in the morning, and it is the dark-est time just before day-break. But by the flashes of lightning we see him putting his feet on the crest of the waves, stepping from crest to crest, walking the white surf, solid as though it were frozen snow. The sailors think a ghost is striking the tempest, but he cheers them into placidity, showing himself to be a great Christ for sailors. And he walks the Atlantic and Pacific and Mediterranean and Adriatic now, and if exhausted and almost frightened voyagers will listen for his voice at 10:30 o'clock in the morning on any sea, indeed at any hour, they will hear his voice of compassion and encouragement.

We continue to follow our Chieftain, and here is a blind man by the way-side. It is not from cataract of the eye or from ophthalmia, the ey sexterminer of the east; but he was born blind. "Rabboni!" he cries, and first there is smarting of the eye-lids, and then a twinge, and then a mid-noon, and then a shout "I see!" I see!" Tell it to all the blind, and they at least can appreciate it. And here is the widow's dead son, and here is the exsired damsel, and here is Lazarus! "Live!" our Chieftain cries, and they live. Tell it through all the bereft households; tell it among the graves. And here around him gather the deaf and dumb and the lisping, and at his word they turn on their couches, and the blush from awful pallor of helpless illness blush from awful pallor of helpless illness to ruby and health, and the swollen foot to rubicund health, and the swollen foot of the dropsical sufferer becomes fleet as a roe on the mountains. The music of the grove and house-hold wakens the deaf ear, and lunatic and maniac return into bright intelligence, and the leper's breath becomes sweet as the breath of a child comes as sweet as the breath of a child and the flesh as rose-rote. Tell it to all the sick, through all the hospitals, homes, through all the mad-houses. Tell it at 12 o'clock in the morning; tell it at 2 o'clock in the morning; tell it at 3:30, and in the last watch of the night, that Jesus walk the tempest.

Still we follow our Chieftain until the government that gave him no protection, government that he pay tax and too poor to insists that he pay tax and too poor to raise the requisite two dollars and seventy-five cents, he orders Peter to catch a fish that has in its mouth a Roman stater, for that has in its mouth a Roman stater, which is a bright coin (and you know that fish naturally bite at anything bright), not it was a miracle that Peter should have caught it at the first haul.

Now we follow our Chieftain until for the paltry sum of fifteen dollars Judas sells him to his pursuers. Tell it to all the thousands of lost souls. If for ten thousand dollars or one hundred dollars or for one hundred dollars your interests were sold out, could it keep what's or how much cheaper a sum the Lord of earth and heaven was surrendered to humiliation and death. But here, while following him on a spring night between 11 and 12 o'clock, we see the flashes of torches and lanterns, and we hear the cry of a mob of Nihilists. They are breaking in on the qui tude of Gethsemane with clubs—like a mob with sticks chasing a mad dog. It is a band of Jerusalem "roughs" led on by Judas to arrest Christ and punish him for being the loveliest and best being that ever lived. But rioters are liable to assail the wrong man. How were they to be sure which one was Jesus? "I will kiss him," says Judas, "and by that signal you will know on whom to lay your hands of arrest." So the kiss which throughout the human race and for all time God intended as the most sacred demonstration of affection, for Paul writes to the Romans and the Corinthians and the Thessalonians concerning the "holy kiss," and Peter celebrates the kiss of charity, and with that conjunction of lips Esau met Jacob, and Joseph met his brethren, and Aaron met Moses and Samuel met Saul and Jonathan met David and Orpah parted from Naomi and Paul separated from his friends at Ephesu and the father in the parable greeted the returning prodigal, and when the millennium shall come we are told righteousness and peace will kiss each other, and all the world is invited to greet Christ as inspiration cries out "Kiss the Son, lest he be angry and ye perish from the way"—that most sacred demonstration of reunion and affection was desecrated as the filthy lips of Judas touched the pure cheek of Christ, and the horrid smack of that kiss has its echo in the treachery and debasement and hypocrisy of all ages.

As in December, 1580, I walked on the way from Bethany, and at the foot of Mount Olivet, a half mile from the wall of Jerusalem, through the Garden of Gethsemane, and under the eight venerable olive trees now standing, their pomological ancestors having been witnesses of the occurrences spoken of, the scene of horror and of crime came back to me, until I shuddered with the historical reminiscence.

In further following our great Chieftain's march through the centuries, I find myself in a crowd in front of Herod's palace in Jerusalem, and on a movable platform placed upon a tasselated pavement, Pontius Pilate sits. And as once a year a condemned criminal is pardoned, Pilate lets the people choose whether it shall be Barabbas or our Chieftain, and they all cry out for the liberation of the assassin, thus declaring they prefer a murderer to the salvation of the world. Pilate took a basin of water in front of these people and tried to wash off the blood of this murder from his hands, but he could not. They are still lifted and I see them looming up through all the ages, eight fingers and two thumbs standing out red with the carnage.

Still following our Chieftain, I ascended the hill with General Gordon, the great English explorer and arbiter, first made a clay model of it. It is hard climbing for our Chieftain, for he has not only two heavy timbers to carry on his back, the upright and horizontal pieces of the cross, but he is suffering from exhaustion caused by lack of food, mountain chills, desert heats, whippings with elm-wood rods, and years of maltreatment.

It took our party in 1889 only fifteen minutes to climb to the top of the hill and reach that limestone rock in yonder hall, which I rolled down from the apex to Mount Calvary. But I think our Chieftain must have taken a long time for the ascent for he had all earth and all heaven and all hell on his back as he climbed from hell to summit. Behind there endure what William Cowper, and John Milton, and Charley Wesley, and Isaac Watts, and James Montgomery, and all the other sacred poets have attempted to put in verse; and Angelo, and Raphael, and Titian, and Leonardo da Vinci, and all the great Italian, and German, and Spanish, and French artists have attempted to paint, and Bossuet, and Massillon, and George Whitfield, and Thomas Chalmers have attempted to preach.

Something of its overwhelming awfulness you may estimate from the fact that the sun which shines in the heaven could not endure it; the sun which unflinchingly looked upon the deluge that drowned the world, without blanching looked upon the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah which swallowed fire and Caracas, and has looked unblushed on the battle-fields of Arbela, Blenheim, Megiddo, and Edrasson, and all the scenes of carnage that have ever scalded and drenched the earth with human gore—that sun could not look upon this scene. The sun dropped over its face a veil of cloud. It would not look itself. It said to the midnight, "I resign to thee this spectacle upon which I have no strength to gaze; thou art blind. Oh, midnight! and for this reason I commit to thee this tragedy! Then the nightmare and the bat flew by, and the jackal howled in the ravine.

Now we follow our Chieftain as they carry his limp and lacerated form amid the flowers and trees of a garden, the gladiolus, the cocodrus, the lilies, the geranium, the mandrakes, down five or six steps to an aisle of granite where he sleeps. But only a little while he sleeps there, for there is an earthquake in all that region, leaving the rocks to this day in their ashlar and ruptured state decorative of the fact that something extraordinary there happened. And we see our Chieftain arise from his bed of slumber and wrestle down the ruffian death who would keep him imprisoned in that cavern and put both heels on the monster, and coming forth with a cry that will not cease to be echoed until on the great resurrection day the door of the last sepulcher shall be unhinged and flung clanging into the debris of demolished cemeteries.

Now we follow our Chieftain to the shoulder of Mount Olivet, and with out wings he rises, the disciples clutching for his robes too fat to reach them, and across the great gulfs of space with one bound he gains that world which for thirty-three years had been denied his companionship, and all heaven lifts a shout of welcome as he entered, and of confusion as up the mediterranean throne he mounted. It was the greatest day heaven had ever seen. They had him back again from tears, from wounds, from ills, from a world that never appreciated him, to a world in which he was the chief delight. Had the libretto of ecclesiastical music, it was hard to find an anthem enough confabulant to celebrate the day by saintly seraphic, archangelic, deific.

But still we follow our Chieftain in his march through the centuries, for invisibly he still walks the earth, and by the eye of faith we still follow him. You can tell where he walks by the churches and hospitals and reformatory institutions and stars have been discovered and chasms and volcanoes and canals and the style of atmosphere, and this will go on, and mightier and mightier telescopes will be invented until I should not wonder if we will be able to exchange signals with other planets. And as I have no doubt other worlds are inhabited, for God would not have built such magnificent world-houses to have them stand without tenants or occupants, in the final jay of earth's redemption all astronomy I think will take part, we signalling other worlds and they in turn signaling their stellar neighbors. Oh, what a day in heaven that will be when this march of Christ is finished! I know that on the cross Christ said: "It is finished," but he meant his sacrificial work was finished. All earth and all heaven knows that evangelization is not finished, but there will come a day in heaven most rapturous. It may be after our world which is thought to have about fifteen hundred million people shall have on its decks twice its present population, namely three thousand million souls and all redeemed, and it will be after this world shall be so damaged by conflagration that no human foot can tread its surface and no human being can breathe its air, but most certainly the day will come when heaven will be finished and the last of the 12 gates of the eternal city shall have clanged shut, never to open except for the admission of some colossal embassage returning from some other world, and Christ may strike his scarred but healed hand in emphasis on the arm of the amethystine throne and say in substance: "All my ransomed ones are gathered; the work is done; I have finished my march through the centuries."

Was in 1813, after the battle of Leipsic, which decided the fate of the nineteenth century, in some respects the most tremendous battle ever fought, the bridge down, the river incarnadined, the street choked with the wounded, the fields for miles around strewn with a dear soldiery from whom all traces of humanity had been dashed out there met in the public square of that city of Leipsic the allied conquerors, and kings who had gained the victory—the king of Prussia, the emperor of Russia, the crown prince of Sweden—followed by the chiefs of their armies. With drawn swords these monarchs saluted each other and cheered for the continental victory they had together gained. History has no more the scene immobile.

Grander and more thrilling will be the spectacle when the world is all conquered for the truth and in front of the palace of heaven the kings and conquerors of all the allied powers of Christian use unless shall salute each other, and recount the struggles by which they gained the triumph, and then hand over their swords to him who is the chief of the conquerors, crying: "Taine, on Christ, is the kingdom; take the crown of victory; the crown dominion; the crown of grace; the crown of glory." On his head were many crowns."

FRANCE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE,
33 & 40 W. Gay St., one block N. of State House, Columbus, O. Incorporated, 1886. Capital, $300,000.

DRS. FRANCE AND OTTMAN, of New York, the well known and successful Specialists in Chronic Diseases and Diseases of the Eye and Ear, on account of their large practice in Ohio, have established the FRANCE MEDICAL INSTITUTE, where all forms of Chronic, Nervous and Private Diseases will be successfully treated on the most Scientific principles. They are ably assisted by a full corps of eminent Physicians and Surgeons, each one being a well known specialist in his profession.

CANCER positively cured without pain or use of the knife, by a new method.

YOUNG MEN—Who have become victims of solitary vice, that dreadful and destructive habit, which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, may call with confidence.

GENTLEMEN—DR. FRANCE, after years of experience, have discovered the greatest cure known for weakness in the back and limbs, involuntary discharges, impotency, general debility, nervousness, dizziness, confusion of ideas, palpitation of the heart, timidity, trembling, dimness of sight, or giddiness, diseases of the head, throat, nose, or skin, affections of the liver, lungs, stomach, or bowels—those terrible diseases arising from the solitary vice of youth—and secret practices, blighting their most radiant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage impossible. Take one candid thought before it is too late. A week or month may place your case beyond the reach of hope. Our method of treatment will speedily and permanently cure the most obstinate case, and absolutely restore perfect manhood.

TO MIDDLE-AGED MEN—Are you troubled from the age of 35 to 60 who are troubled with frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight burning or smarting sensation, weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examination of the urinary deposits, a ropy sediment will be found, or the color will be a thin or milkish hue. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is a second stage of seminal weakness. We can guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—We have a special department, thoroughly organized, and devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases of women. Every case consulting our specialists, whether by letter or in person, is given the most careful and considerate attention. Important cases, and we get few which have not baffled the skill of all the home physicians) have the benefit of a full council of skilled specialists. In treatment of diseases peculiar to females, our success has been marked, over two-thirds of our patients being ladies, old, young, married, single, rich and poor. Our method is entirely free from objectionable features of the general practice, namely, "Local Examinations." We seldom find it necessary. We prepare remedies, constitutional and local, as the case demands, and instruct ladies how to treat themselves.

MARRIAGE.—Married persons, or young men contemplating marriage, aware of physical weakness, loss of procreative powers, impotency, or any other disqualification, speedily restored.

PRIVATE DISEASES.—Blood Poison, Venereal Taint, Gleet, Stricture, Seminal Emissions, Loss of Sexual Power, Weakness of Sexual Organs, Want of Desire in Male or Female, whether from imprudent habits of youth, or sexual habits of mature years, or any cause that produces debilitating sexual functions, speedily and permanently cured. ### Tips for Impecunious Tourists on the Most Available Quarters in Transit—Standing Off the Brakies on a Stolen Ride From Denver to Chicago.

Thousands of tramps, hoboes, bums, deadbeats and "busted" people of all sorts beat their way over the railroads of this country. I had heard of their exploits in this direction, and being nearly "broke" in Denver I determined to adopt the cheapest of all methods of transit. It is not an easy feat, nor indeed a desirable one, but for soul-stirring, hair-raising excitement and liver-rousing exercise I can confidently recommend it to the attention of tourists of limited means.

Having made inquiry of various train-jumpers, I found that a variety of manhoods was open to me, in the selection of which I must be guided by circumstances. The passenger train has its advantages and likewise its drawbacks. One portion of the train only can be jumped, as a rule, namely the "blind baggage," being the front part of the baggage, or mail car immediately behind the engine.

In most cases it is inaccessible to either conductor or brakeman, and although the engineer and fireman may see you they seldom will give you away. In some solid vestibule trains a man may sit on the steps between the cars, but he is likely to be seen, and this plan is seldom

In choosing a passenger train it is necessary to look out for a "flyer," or otherwise the journey is likely to be a short one as at each station the jumper must get off as the engine slacks up, hide until she starts again, and avoid the watchful eyes of the officials, otherwise he will be "ditched" to a certainty.

The freight is without doubt the favorite, and an empty box-car, whether by day or by night, gives a good chance for a long run. On some lines, however, a stock car is preferable as there are fewer stoppages and the end door between the cars enables the trayler to enter unobserved. Coal trains are also worthy of attention, as they only pull up at the principal stations.

There are men, however, who make a point of getting on every train that passes them, regardless of selection, and these dauntless individuals will ride on the bumpers, the brake-beam, the rods underneath, and even on the cow-catcher or on top of the train, anywhere, in fact, so long as they gain a few miles toward the destination.

Having given these particulars I will proceed to relate how I, a novice and a tenderfoot, made the journey of 1,172 miles from the Colorado capital to Chicago.

In conformity with instructions from a well-posted tramp, I went to the Union Pacific yards, where a train was being made up, and in a mortal fright scrambled into the first empty car I saw. Crouching down in a corner I sat in fear and trembling. Visions of the patrol wagon and caboose were ever present with me and at last I jumped out and decided to walk.

I made 19 miles before I stopped, and though I looked longingly at the trains which passed I could not summon courage to make another attempt. Next day however, I took a different view of affairs and in desperation I waited for the morning passenger which passed Brighton. A little beyond the depot, on the opposite side, I lay in ambush, and when at last the engine approached I could see no sign of conductor or brakeman.

She only stopped about a minute and then as she began to ring the bell, which sounded to me like a death knell, I made a bold rush, sprang on the blind baggage and before I could recover my scattered senses we were flying along at the rate of 45 miles an hour. "No more walking for me," I reflected and my heart thrilled with joy as we sped toward the rising sun.

Little I cared, though my hair was sometimes singed by the flying cinders. I was full of gladness and loved all railroad men as my benefactors from George Stephenson to Jay Gould.

At length sparks from the wheels of the engine warned me of a stoppage and with merry sounding bell we swept into La Salle, 47 miles from Denver.

I lost no time in parting company with the train, however, for my trepidation returned at the thought of an interview with either an indignant "con." or unrelenting "brakie." A party of tramps were holding festival at this place, and I was rather startled to hear that a posse of police had been requisitioned from Denver, for my new acquaintances had taken possession of the water-tank, around which they slept, and their depredations throughout the neighborhood were notorious.

There was no suitable train till evening —another "flyer," which ran to Sterling, 94 miles, without stopping. Had it not been that an expert in the jumping line turned up and posted me I should never have caught it. We had to lie down among some weeds at the off side from the depot, for agent, conductors, and brakemen are on the watch for night trains.

Then, crawling on hands and knees out of the line of light from the approaching engine and brakie's lantern, anxiously marking his retreating steps as he satisfied himself that there was no necessity for him to "ride the blind baggage out," another swift advance just as she was getting under way, and we were safe.

I must explain here that when the brakeman of a passenger sees probable jumpers about he gets on the blind baggage, which carries him a few hundred yards, slacks up and lets him off, utterly destroying the hopes of the impecunious tourist.

At Sterling I again alighted, and waited for a freight which was due in a few hours. An empty car was visible as the train passed. I felt brave and confident now, so I leaped in without hesitation. Almost immediately afterward a brakeman appeared. "Hello!" said he, "where are you going?"

"To Julesberg," I replied.

"How are you fixed?" he asked. I knew what he meant. Fifty cents changed hands and I slept in a corner of the car for the next few hours, until the brakie informed me that Julesberg was reached. I could get very little information about the trains here. It was raining heavily and I felt despondent when suddenly I saw a train stealing out of the depot and evidently eastward bound.

2 Tramp

Cautiously but rapidly I made after it, hoping it would stop to water, and keeping a line of cars between me and my natural enemies. Then dragging myself in at an end door I discovered that I had struck a coal train. "Got any stuff?" was the formula used by the brakeman on this occasion, in reply to which I gave him what is known as a "song and dance," accompanied by a quarter.

He demurred, but the song and dance softened him, and we rumbled into North Platte after two minor stoppages. I was desperately tired when I got out, and coals are ossifying after a few hours, so I secured a bed and slept well.

I was now 270 miles from Denver. The Rocky Mountains were "out of sight," and I felt happy. At 12.35 next day, in broad daylight and under the very noses of police and populace, I caught the Omaha flyer, hoping to reach Kearney in one stage of 93 miles. We stopped at Lexington to water. The brakie spotted me getting off, and by riding the baggage car deprived himself of my company. That same evening the city marshal haunted the depot, so I walked to Elm creek, where I caught a coal train to Kearney.

Another splendid run behind an express engine landed me, without interference, in Grand Island, where the atmosphere was Teutonic and the best farm supported the beer garden. Central City, on another flyer, was reached, and I had made 416 miles from the starting point.

Here I met with some difficulty, for a Burlington & Missouri crossing intersects the eastern line within half a mile of town, where, by law, every train must stop. Hoboes, tarriers, and toughs were abounding at this spot, and trainmen were on the alert, so I decided to walk to Clark's, 10 miles off, whence, without difficulty, I caught a local freight to Columbus.

"What have you got?" said the brakie as I sat in a coal car on my way to Omaha.

"Stone broke," I replied.

"Then you will have to get off at the next stop," he responded, but evidently he forgot about me, for I saw nothing more of him.

I had now reached Omaha, and was advised by certain railroad men, who, unless personally involved, are most sympathetic with train-jumpers, that Council Bluffs was my mark, as there the great eastern lines made up their freight and stock trains. At 7.30 a Rock Island freight approached and I clung to the only open car, finding myself face to face with a determined-looking bulldog, whose owner asked me what the hades I wanted.

"Let me run on to the next stop." I gasped, and to my surprise he let me climb over the temporary barrier, where I found myself in company with several horses bound for Chicago. I tried to persuade him to let me continue my journey with him, but he was inexorable, but hinted that there were other empty cars. So there were, but they were open flats, and I was in constant terror of detectives for the next 50 miles or so, besides being desperately cold.

At Stuart the division ended, and I was peremptorily ordered off the train by a new brakie who came on duty. I got off, but, waiting till the engine started, I returned to my friend with the stallions, and pleading hard, was allowed to ride to Des Moines, where I was glad to alight, being both tired and hungry.

That evening a fast passenger carried nine tourists, of which I was one, on the blind baggage. We got off and hid at every station, eventually being ditched at Grinnell after two hours' run.

I spent the night and next day here, catching the evening express by great diplomacy.

An electric arc light illuminates the engines at the starting point, but it left black shadows, in one of which I lay until the brakie had assured himself that no one was about. I only made 18 miles, however, for he saw me jump off, and rode the baggage out from Brooklyn, Ia.

Almost immediately afterward a hog train turned up, and I was invited to share the car with the other 50 or so. The heat and smell were nearly unbearable, and when they turned a hose on the animals and deluged me I wished myself anywhere, and took the earliest opportunity of clearing out. By this time I had reached Wilton, and soon afterward, a local passenger turning up, I jumped on the blind.

A miserable boy who happened to be in the mail car saw me, and told the conductor, who instantly followed me, and sarcastically remarked that this was not a street car. I took the hint and vamoosed. Being ashamed to return to the depot and wait for another chance, I walked to the next town.

That afternoon I rode the bumpers to the next place, some six miles, was ditched, and caught the next freight, riding in the same manar to Dapenport.

Across the Mississippi I struck Rock Island, Ill., 181 miles from my destination. I was getting very tired, and sincerely hoped that I would be fortunate enough to make Chicago in one jump. I was singularly fortunate, and shall not soon forget the courtesy and kindness received from an Ohio gentleman who was taking some horses east.

He made me welcome, and I found a pleasant companion, whom I hope to meet again under other circumstances. At South Chicago I bade him a reluctant farewell, and enlisted the services of a Baltimore & Ohio engine to take me to Monroe street.

A BILLION DOLLARS.

An Attempt to Comprehend the Recent Congressional Appropriations.

The Fifty-first congress made appropriations aggregating one billion eight million of dollars, and did it ever strike you what that much money meant in material form? A dollar bill 7 1-2 inches long, a billion eight million of them would be 7,556,400,000 inches or in round numbers 120,000 miles, almost half way to the moon. A band of dollar bills five times around the earth, or a belt of dollars 15 inches wide clear around the equator.

A dollar bill contains twenty-two and a half square inches; 1,008,000,000 would contain 22,680,000,000 square inches or 3,616 acres, and we then have a carpet of dollar bills spreading over more than five square miles of territory.

One hundred 81 bills may be squeezed into a space of one inch high, a 1,008,000,000 of them would rise into a monument 160 miles above the surface of the earth.

Counting one hundred dollars a minute, a bank clerk would require 1,680 working days of ten hours each to count this money, rather a long time for somebody to wait on the outside of the counter for his cash.

In silver dollars this amount would weigh 31,500 tons, that is to say, 1,575 car loads. An array of 441,000 men each carrying 140 pounds, would be required to move the pile, and if the dollars were laid one upon the other, running eight to the inch, there would rise a monument of silver 1,987 miles high, some distance further up than the Grant monument in New York.

Paying $50 an acre for land this money would buy 100 201,600-acre farms, and paying the government price of $1.25 per acre it would buy five states the size of Texas and twenty-five the size of Michigan.

It would pay the salary of the President of the United States for 20,160 years, that is to say, for the next 5,040 presidents, and it would be ample to meet the wages of the vice-presidents for 126,000 years, or the next 31,500 of them.

A private soldier in the regular army could be accommodated with pocket money out of it for almost six million four hundred thousand years.

It would furnish to a thirsty multitude 21,160,000,000 glasses of beer, say a little less than twenty each for every man, woman and child on the earth.

It would, if distributed, give every state in the Union twenty-four new millionaires, and it would pay the salaries of two senators from each state for 2,300 years.

And lastly the whole sum wouldn't buy a single breath of life for a dying man, or do him a particle of good after the breath had left his body.—Detroit Free Press.

A rancher from way back on the ranges engaged a room in the Occidental hotel, in Seattle, Wash., a few days ago. The hotel is lighted by electricity, and the bell boy turned on the light in the old rancher's room. The farmer didn't know how to extinguish the light, and, after exhausting his ideas, uncoiled the length of wire by which the light hung and stuck the lamp in the bureau drawer, smothering it under his clothing. The next day the lamp was found stowed away there and still burning.

Should be provided with Ayer's Pills. No other aperient is in such general demand or so highly recommended by the profession. Mild but thorough in operation, these pills are the best of all remedies for constipation, biliousness, heartburn, indigestion, flatulency, loss of appetite, liver complaint, and sick headache. They break up colds, fevers, and malaria, relieve rheumatism and neuralgia, and are indispensable to travelers, either by land or sea. Sugar-coated and compounded of the purest vegetable cathartics, they may be taken with impunity by old and young. Physicians recommend these pills in preference to any other.

Needs

H. W. Hersh, Judsonia, Ark., says: "In 1883, by the advice of a friend, I began the use of Ayer's Pills as a remedy for biliousness, constipation, high fevers, and colds. They served me better than anything I had previously tried, and I have used them in attacks of that sort ever since."

THE FACTS

THE CASE

Are that you should own your own home. No matter what your occupation is--business man, lawyer, laboring man, mechanic--you can have your own home and live more economically than in any other man's house. More comfortably, too, for you can build your house and if you haven't the ready money to pay for it you can have all the time you want. It's cheaper than paying rent and in a few years you'll not need to pay anything.

In furtherance of this object we can now offer you your choice of lots in BRANDON Heights, Brandon the new addition on Cherry St., in a locality of which the richest need not be ashamed and at prices the poorest can afford. Just beyond the intersection of Franklin avenve with Cherry street, a 13-acre tract has been platted, the streets graded and paved, sewers put in, etc., and with the street cars on Cherry street, gas and water,, is one of the finest places in the city for a home.

If you'll admit that it is a good thing for one to own his home; if you'll admit that common sense, economy, and your HEIGHTS friends who already own one, dictate that it is better to have your own home; if you'll admit that it is cheaper to pay a few dollars taxes than a few hundred dollars rent every year; if you'll admit that it gives a man better standing in his community, gives him better credit and a feeling of independence never before experienced to own some Real Estate, then why don't you own some? You can. Look at Brandon Heights for instance.

THEY NEVER GAIN A MINUTE

The Reason Why S:18 Is Always Indicated on Jewelers' Dummies.

There are few who have not seen the ordinary sign of a jeweller—an immense imitation of a watch hanging over the front of the store.

But it is safe to say that the number who have detected anything curious in these same signs is very small.

At 8:18 p. m., April 14, 1865, Abraham Lincoln was assassinated in Ford's theatre at Washington by John Wilkes Booth. Since that fatal night every one of these watch signs that has gone from the factory of the only man who makes them has shown the hour of 8:18.

The man who makes them says: I was then working on a sign for Jeweller Adams, who kept a store on Broadway across the street from Stewart's. He came running in while I was at work and told me the news. "Paint those hands at the hour Lincoln was shot, that the deed may never be forgotten," he said, pointing to the sign I was reading for him. I did so. Since then every watch sign that has gone out of here has been lettered the same as that one.—New York World.

MEXICAN BEER.

It Is Made from a Cactus Plant and Is Odor Is Like That of Limburger.

Mexico has the best and cheapest beer in the world. You can buy it all over Mexico for a cent a glass, and there are a thousand licensed shops in Mexico City. The Mexican beer is called pulque. It is made from the sap of a cactus plant of the same species as century plant. This grows in Mexico to a height of from 8 to 15 feet, and each plant will produce from 8 to 15 quarts of juice per day. They continue to yield this amount for six months. At first this sap is as sweet as sugar and as clear as crystal. After 24 hours, however, its color has changed to that of skimmed milk. It has begun to ferment and it tastes like buttermilk. It begins to smell and its odor and strength increases as it grows older, so that for a block around a pulque shop you have the smell of a limburger cheese factory and you can shut your eyes and find the saloons by your nose. The beer has about the same effect as good Bavarian bock. It makes you feel comfortable and too much of it goes to your head. It acts on your liver and kidneys and aids digestion. If you take it towards night it cures your insomnia, and I find it an excellent tonic.

This pulque is raised in big plantations. The sap is allowed to run into a bowl made in the plant by cutting out a central cone around which its leaves grow. It is collected by peons who poke long gourds into the holes of plants, suck them full of the sap, and empty them into pigskin bags. The pulque ferments in these bags. In them it is carried into Mexico City and it is served either from them or from barrels. The method of dispensing it out to the customers is no more appetizing than the mode of gathering it. A dirty Mexican in his shirt sleeves, with his arms bare to the biceps, takes a glass the size of a schooner and thrusts his arm into the barrel up to the elbow and gives you the pulque with his hands dripping. If you can conquer your nose, you drink it, and the result is not at all bad.

The pulque plant is one of the most useful plants in the world. Its fibres makes excellent thread, and the Aztecs use its thorns for needles. They thatch their houses with its leaves, and in the days of Montezuma they made paper out of it. This paper was like papyrus, and there are old Aztec manuscripts in existence which were made in this way. A number of other liquors in addition to pulque are produced from the plant, among them a very fine brandy called Mescal.—Carp. in N. Y. World.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

How a Hunter Pursued by Five Wolves Gathered Them In

J. W. Griffing writes to the Franklin Sun from Conro, La., August 12:

I went hunting last Monday morning. About 8 o'clock I saddled and mounted my horse and started for the woods, with "Punch," my hog dog, and a young pup following me. After riding several miles I looked for the pup, but he was missing. I blew my horn for him, but he would not come, so I rode on, and after going several miles more I heard some hunting hound which I thought was my pup. I stopped, and in a few minutes the howling was repeated. In less than one minute I saw five wolves advancing. They were in the direction of the howling and it was them that did it.

When they were within fifty yards of me they commenced to howl again, and kept advancing with their tails curled, hair standing on their backs and looking as though they were bloodthirsty. I sat perfectly still on my horse, thinking they would take to flight should they see me. But I was mistaken. When about twenty yards from me they began to growl like savage dogs, and I could see that they were glaring at me. I thought it was time for me to commence work, so with a double-barreled breech-loader I fired on one of the largest. It retreated badly wounded. In a moment I was ready for another. Of course I was expecting to shoot as they ran off, as wolves are very wild. But to my great astonishment the remaining four were still advancing.

I had no time to tarry, so I fired again and 12 buckshot entered the head of a large brindle male wolf which was not more than a rod from me. I loaded very quickly, and my next target was a dark red female. She was not so close—about fifteen rods, but was still coming and growling like a dog. At the crack of my gun she fell in her tracks, and without taking the gun from my shoulder I killed another not more than four or five feet from her. I loaded again and the fifth wolf was retreating. All my buckshot were gone, but I sprinkled him with a load of squirrel shot and he fell, but rose again and ran off. "Punch" was not in sight of me when I began to shoot, but he came just as I shot the third wolf. I put him after one I wounded and he ran it some 200 yards or more and bayed it, galloped up, shot it again and it fell to the earth dead. I then amputated its feet, went back to the battle-ground, did the same for two more, put the fourth one on my horse and, after looking in vain for the first one I shot, started on my homeward trip.—New Orleans Picayune.

THE STORY OF DRESDEN CHINA.

The first hard porcelain made in Europe—for majolica, Palissy ware, and others of the sort are pottery, and not porcelain—was the lovely Dresden ware; and in that line nothing has ever been made to exceed color; there is a rumor that real lace is put into the clay before firing for the parts representing lace, but how that may be we do not know. It owes its existence to an accident. The chemist, who had been imprisoned by the Elector in order to find the secret of making gold and of the elixir of life, having come across some substance resembling porcelain in the bottom of a crucible, was unable to get it of a pure tint, till a rider one day found a peculiar white clay on his horse's hoofs, which he had dried and sifted and sold for hair powder, and the unfortunate chemist, using it and observing its weight, experimented with it, and straightway the great Dresden ware—or Meissen, as it is more correctly called—became a success, the first sculptors and colorists of the day lending their art to its perfection. Cruelty, or rather tyranny, has often attended on Dresden china; for Frederick the Great, having sent great quantities of this white earth to Berlin, took captive the best workers in the Meissen and sent them after it, never allowing them to see home again; and presently he obliged the Jews in his dominion to buy the china he thus manufactured by refusing them marriage licenses till they had procured it, thus gaining an immense annual revenue.—Harper's Bazar.

ROMANCE OF THE SEA.

A Georgia Irishman Becomes King of the Island of Nyph.

The wonderful story of Patrick O'Keefe is now the sensation of Savanna. Twenty years ago he was a poor sailor, making a livelihood on the small craft that navigated the neighboring streams. To-day he is monarch of all he surveys, the absolute ruler of all the island of Nyph in the Pacific ocean in the tropics.

In an extended review of his life and adventures the Savanna News says that he would probably still be a resident of Savannah, and a poor man, but for two tragedies in which he figured as one of the principals. In 1867, as the story is told by an old-timer, he was mate of the schooner Annie Sims, which plied between this city and Darien. On the schooner was a young Irish sailor named Sullivan, he and O'Keefe being apparently good friends. While near Darien loading lumber the mate was building a cabin on the schooner and he asked Sullivan what he thought of it. The sailor made a joking reply which angered O'Keefe, and a fight resulted. Sullivan got the best of it and O'Keefe went to his quarters, and, securing a pistol returned and began firing at the sailor. The latter dodged behind the new cabin several times and finally got up and remarked to O'Keefe that he couldn't shoot anybody, but he was mistaken, for the next bullet struck him and he died in a short while. The mate was brought to Savannah, and, after a long confinement in jail, was tried and acquitted in the United States court. Afterwards, while a officer of a small steamer, he had trouble with one of the deck hands and ran him into the river where he was drowned.

These troubles seemed to worry O'Keefe and he determined to leave the "states," as he termed it. In 1871 he sailed away from Savannah as second mate of an American vessel bound for Liverpool, and when he bade his friends good-by on the wharf he told them that he would never return to Savannah unless he came in his own ship. From Liverpool he shipped to the East Indies, and from there to Hong Kong. He had saved a little money by this time and began a small fruit and lumber business between the Philippines and Hong Kong. He was successful, and after a few years secured the Island Nyph from the natives by a trade of some sort.

The island abounds in teakwood and fruit, and O'Keefe bought a schooner and a brig, and started business for himself on a big scale. His vessel ran to Hong Kong, and he soon built up an extensive trade which has steadily increased until now he is reckoned as a very wealthy man.

O'Keefe left behind him when he sailed away from Savannah a wife and baby daughter, who is now a young woman. For years nothing was hear of his whereabouts. After he began to prosper in his far-away home, however, he wrote a letter and sent money to his wife. He tried to persuade her and his daughter to come to him, but they wouldn't do it. Regularly twice a year since he sends remittances for their support and keeps up a correspondence with them. Mrs. O'Keefe and her daughter live on Liberty street, near East Broad, and have an oil painting of the brig of the "King of Nyph" hanging in their parlor.

Capt. Keane, of the American brig I. W. Parker, which is now here towing lumber for Pernambuco, saw King O'Keefe in Hong Kong several months ago. He was boarding at the Hong Kong hotel in the city and was living in the height of elegance, having a fine driving turnout and every luxury which money could obtain. He spends a great portion of his time in Hong Kong, where deposits his money, and is favorably known to all residents of that city. He said he intended coming to America to attend the world's fair. Besides being a trader of wealth and position, O'Keefe is the ruler of a large colony made up of Malays who swear by him.

His story is a revelation to many of Savannah's old residents who had long since forgotten Capt. Pat O'Keefe and thought him dead.
